

CBFC bans telecast of The Danish Girl

The Oscar-winning movie "Danish Girl" was scheduled to telecast on Sony Pictures Network's channel, Sony Le PLEX HD. However, it received a notice from the CBFC, which termed the film's theme, which was about the world's first sex reassignment surgery, unsuitable for broadcast. The channel tweeted its dismay stating, "We regret to inform you that Sony Le Plex HD is unable to telecast the television premiere of the award-winning film 'The Danish Girl' on March 26 as the necessary certification to enable the telecast of the movie has not been received." "The subject is sensitive and how do you edit a subject like that?" said a CBFC board member, who did not want to be identified. Sony has been facing backlash due to this decision.

Oh Baby!!

Just as last month was the month of break ups and heart breaks, this month seems to be the month of bringing new life to the world. Three of the most prominent Hollywood couples seem to be harboring baby news. On one hand, we have the One Direction crooner and girlfriend Cheryl Cole welcome their first child together on Wednesday, 22nd March, and it's a boy. On the other hand, Benedict Cumberbatch, 40, and Sophie Hunter, 39, are now parents of two little boys. Sophie gave birth to the couple's second son on 3rd March at the ultra chic Portland Hospital in London. Furthermore, the news of 'The Walking Dead' actor Steven Yeun being a father also seems to be making rounds. Steven and his wife Joana Pak has put their boy's photo on Instagram, and we can surely say that he will become a lady killer when he grows up.

NAWAZ SHY AT PARTIES?

Actor Nawazuddin Siddiqui cleans up quite well and attends most of the film festivals such as Sundance, Berlin and Cannes, but easily shies away when it comes to big Bollywood parties. In an event, Nawaz explained that as he often feels "uncomfortable at a typical Desi party", he has almost always turned down invitations. He says people in the industry now know better than to invite him, as they know his reply will always be 'no'. This was an explanation following the claim that Salman has stopped inviting him to his many parties and private bashes.
