

AMBER HEARD COMING OUT

"Well, I always say in response when I hear someone comment about me coming out, I think it's funny because I was never in. I was always very stubborn, and I guess, I just didn't feel it was wrong," says the bold Amber Heard when asked about her sexuality. The actress admits that times have been rough for her. Expressing her views on the matter, the actress said, "It did impact my career. It was difficult. I was the only one working in this way, so it was definitely difficult because no one had done it. I did that even though everyone told me it would, without a doubt, end my career."

Source: Internet

"Taking instructions from women is common for me"

Actor Manoj Bajpayee is said to be one of the most versatile actors of his generations with movies such as "Aligarh" and the "Gangs of Wasseypur" series. We have known him for many of his acting adroitness but now, we see him in a new shade. He is the new flag-bearer of feminism as the actor stated that he has grown up seeing women in instrumental roles in his daily life, and thus, taking instructions from a woman does not hurt his male ego. Talking about the changing role of women not only in Indian cinema, but also in workplaces, Manoj stated, "I have grown up seeing my mother, who is always taking all the decisions in our house; whether it is about our upbringing, domestic chaos or discussing other matters with my father."

Source: Times of India

"WE HAVEN'T PICKED OUT ANY NAMES YET"

"No, we haven't picked out any names," George Clooney revealed, gushing over the fact that Amal is pregnant with twins, in an interview with E news. The actor, in the interview, was talking about becoming a dad with the love of his life, Amal Clooney. "My wife says I can't name them Casa and Amigos. That's the one thing I am not allowed to do," says the actor while promoting his directorial project film "Suburbicon" at Cinema Con on Tuesday. "I don't know how you fully digest having two kids, but I'm excited," the first-time father-to-be revealed, "It will be fun."

Source: AOL