

Share with Care

A lot of people (if not all) on my Facebook have shared the quote attributed to Albert Einstein with Abraham Lincoln's face, saying, "Don't believe everything you read on the internet." Unfortunately, the very same people also share unsubstantiated claims made by unreliable sources about real people. Social media can make or break someone's lives or their careers. Just because something seems "believable" at first glance doesn't mean it is. Try to do some research before hitting the share button.
