

Our people, their people

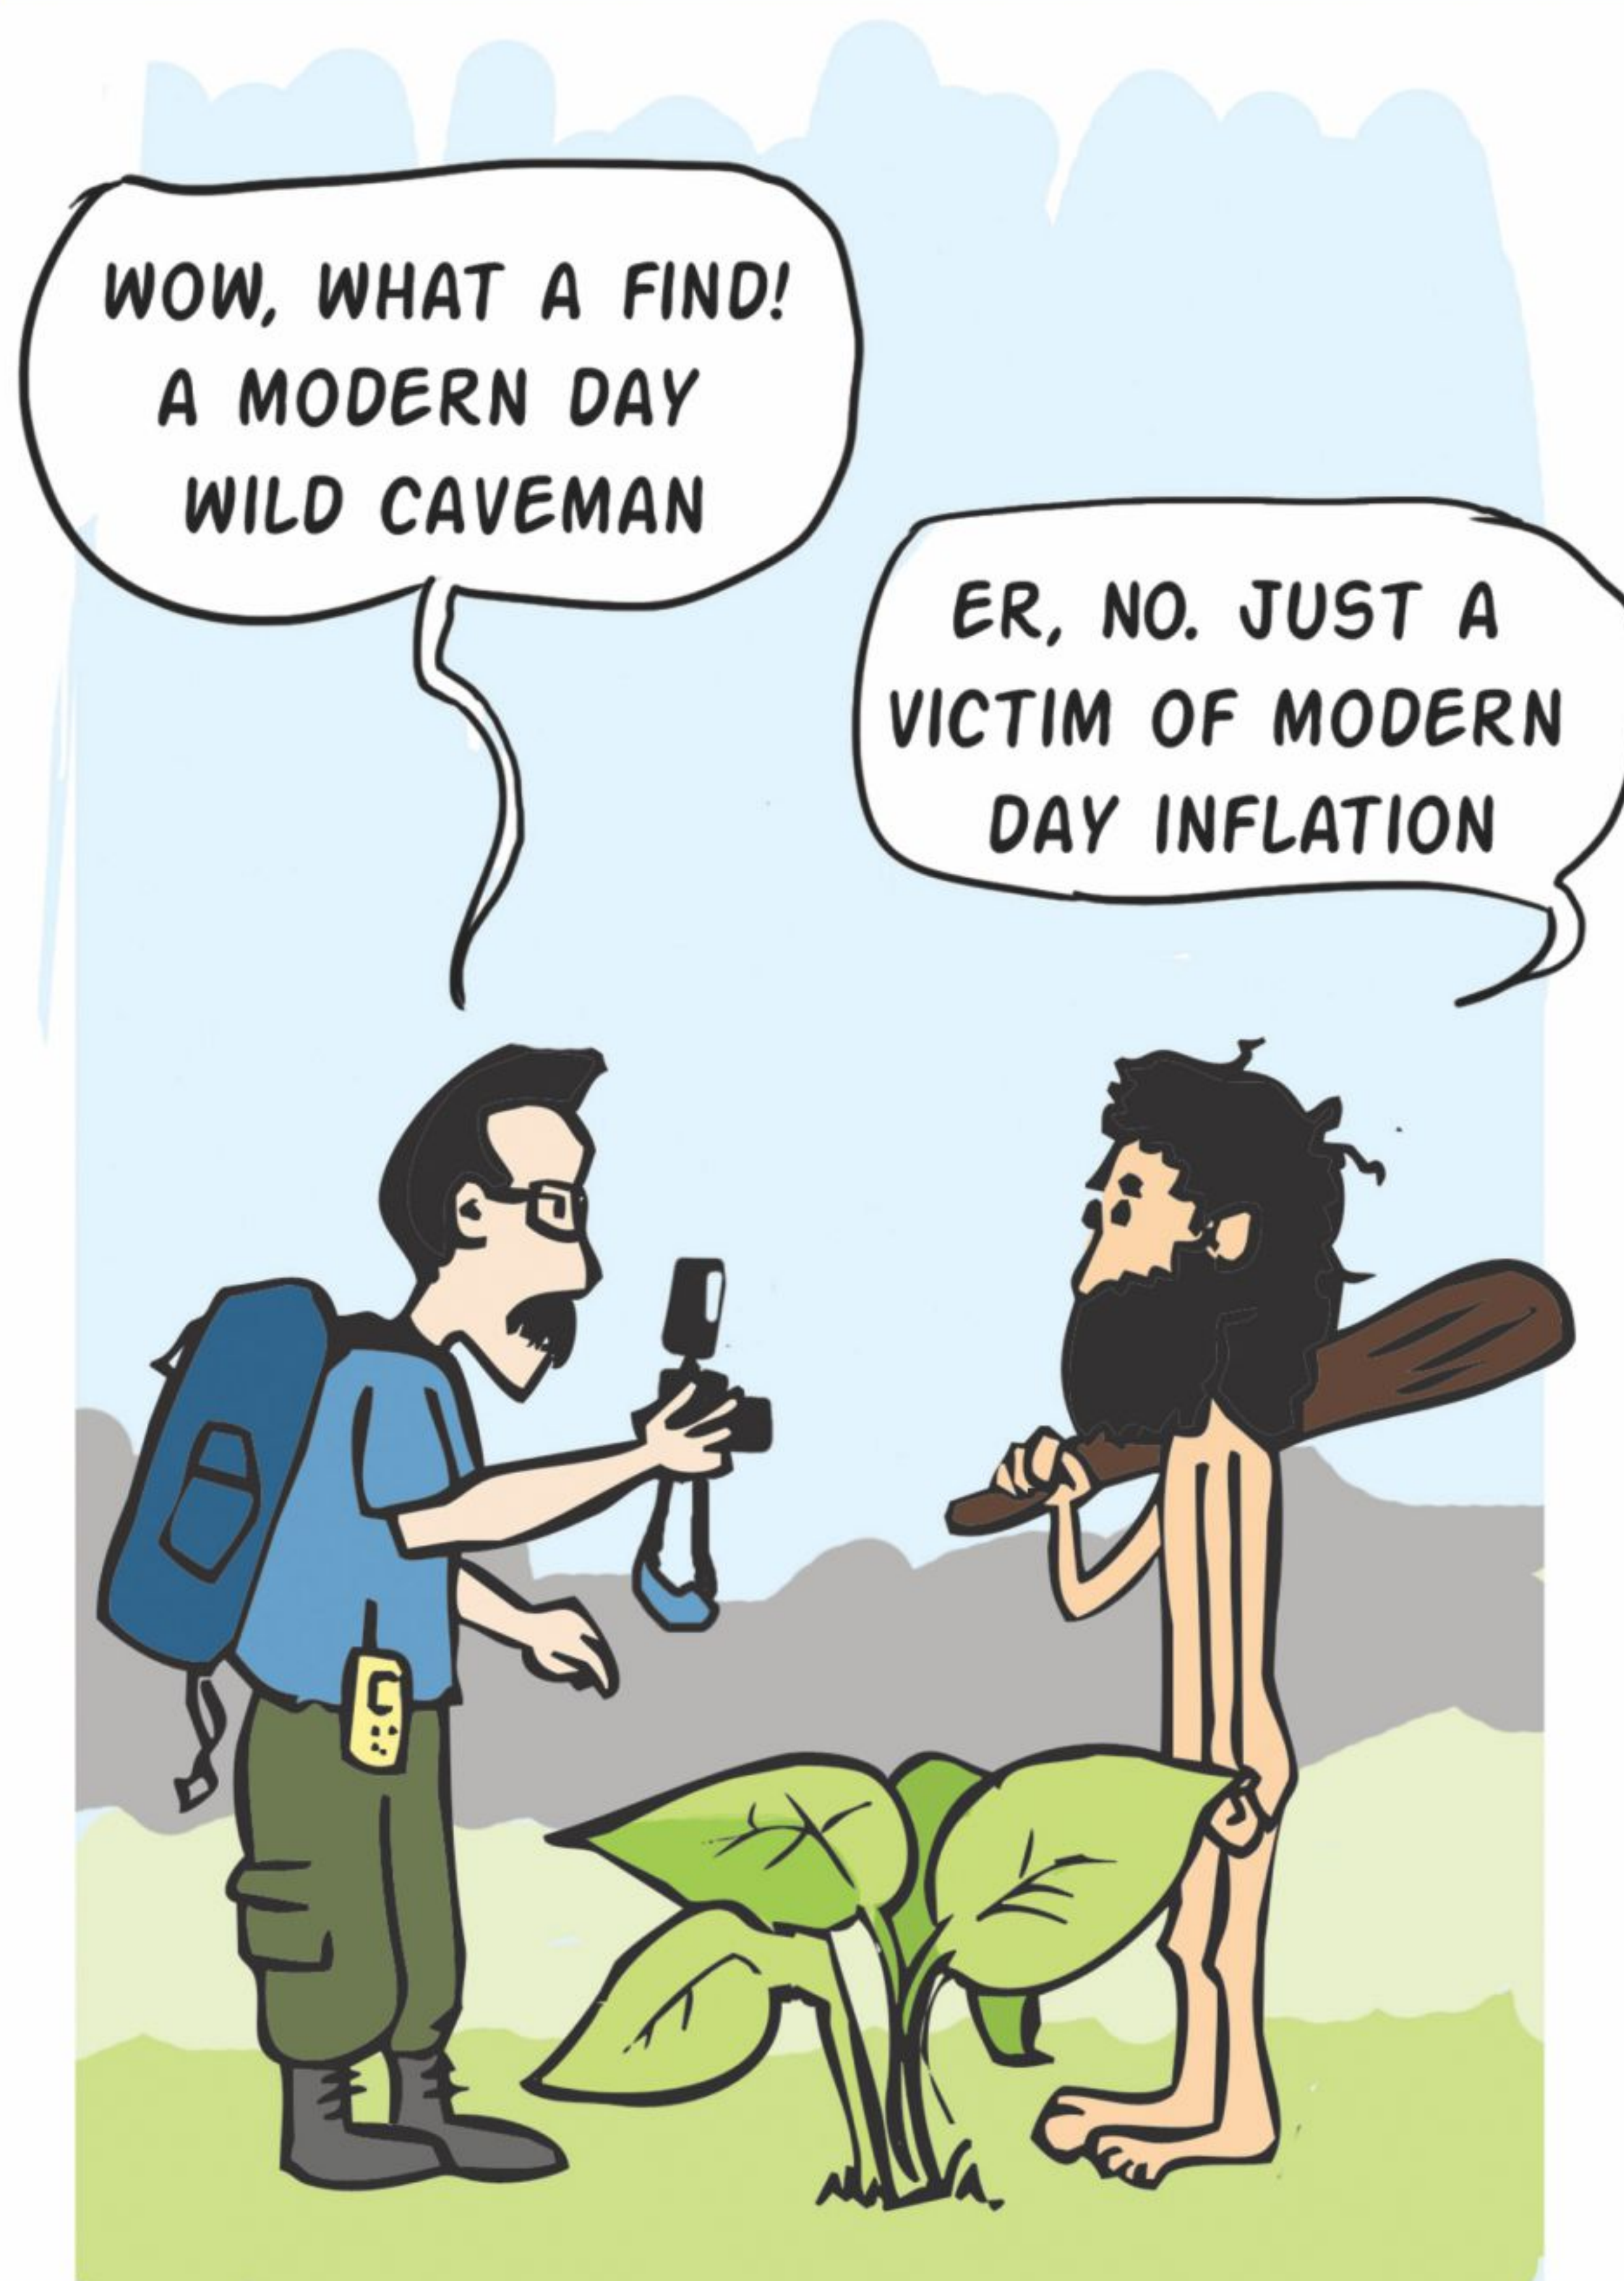

Our people are this;
their people are that.
Our people are always right; their people, wrong.
We'll scream bloody murder every time our people are persecuted/discriminated against in countries where they are the minority but will conveniently look away from oppression of their people who are the minority in this country.
Dearly deluded, social justice is not a one-way street. People are people, all Homo sapiens – whether you claim them yours or otherwise.
