

THE SW8E LYF

Much has been said about the Bangladeshi climate and weather. While one might have a difficult time keeping account of the shororitu and baro maashe tero parbon, one thing is certain – like us humans, each and every air particle hovering upon this blessed piece of land is about 70% water, or even more, and has no schedule as to when they land upon us.

Personally, I avoid most moist stuff; I am not welcoming towards the [hopefully short-lived] humidity.

To make my point, I shall now refer to a friend's recent Facebook status which roughly translates to: "It's too hot for 8 months; I don't want to go out. It's too rainy for 2 months; I don't want to go out. It's too cold for 8 months; I don't want to go out."

Have a nice day.
