

Emma Stone on Equal Pay Issue

Equal pay among male and female actors has been a hot topic in Hollywood for quite some time now. One of the most recent examples include the controversy surrounding Gal Gadot's shockingly low pay compared to male actors like Henry Cavill. Female actresses being paid at par with their male co-stars is rarely seen and one of the most famous examples of such a case is the Friends cast where all the six actors were paid the same for each episode from season 3 onwards. However, for that to happen some of them had to take pay cuts. Recently, Emma Stone has admitted to her male co-star taking a pay cut so that she could have parity with them. Although she didn't take any names, some of her recent works include La La Land, Aloha and Irrational Man. Unfortunately there have been very few cases where a male actor agreed to a pay cut for equality. We can only hope that in future the scenario will change and both the sexes will get the respect they deserve.

Ranbir Takes a Dig at Katrina's Acting!

Ranbir and Katrina have been promoting their new film, Jagga Jasoos for some time now. Although they have broken up, their parting seemed to have been quite amicable given that they continued working post-breakup. They also seemed to be in good spirits in each other's company during the promotional events. However, at a recent event, Ranbir took a sly dig at Katrina's acting. When asked if he has ever overacted in any film, Ranbir said, "I have overacted, yes. But Katrina? I don't think Katrina has ever done that. In fact, there are films where she hasn't acted at all. So yes, she has never overacted in a film." Naturally, Katrina was shocked and retorted with, "Sorry, what did you say?" Ranbir quickly covered it up by replying, "When I say you haven't acted in a few films, I mean that you were so flawlessly natural that you didn't need to 'act'. In Zindagi Na Milegi Dobara you were so natural." Maybe Ranbir still has some bitterness about the breakup left in him!
