Ben Affleck's Batman future in doubt?

When Warner Bros. hired Ben Affleck to play Batman back in the summer of 2013, it looked like it was going to be for a very long engagement. After all, the studio was in the early stages of building their DC Extended Universe, and the Dark Knight is an important figure in that franchise. Since then, Affleck has appeared in two DC Comics movies – "Batman v Superman: Dawn of Justice" and "Suicide Squad" - and later this year he will star in his third, "Justice League". However, new reports are suggesting that the upcoming Zack Snyder film may be one of Affleck's final turns playing the Caped Crusader.

According to a story by The Hollywood Reporter, about Ben Affleck's future as Batman, the actor is still attached to star in the developing Batman solo film (a project he was once going to direct), but that may not actually happen. Instead, sources are saying that the studio plans on starting a process to "gracefully" move on in a different direction without the Affleck, addressing the change in one of their upcoming projects.

Earlier in the year, not only did Matt Reeves replace Ben Affleck as the director of the solo Batman movie, but it was revealed a few weeks ago that Reeves doesn't plan on using any of the script that Affleck co-wrote with DC Chief Creative Officer Geoff Johns. THR also points out that Reeves has been developing plans for a full trilogy of movies, and that may not work out so well time-wise given that Affleck is now 45 years old and would likely be in his mid-50s by the time a three-feature arc wraps up. This obviously wouldn't disqualify him from the part, but the report notes the benefit of doing a soft reboot with a fresh face.

There is suggestion in the new report that Ben Affleck could continue to play Batman in "Justice League" follow-ups while the solo films star a different actor in the role, but that idea is also dismissed as implausible given that a "Justice League 2" could still be long off from now.

SRK, Anushka are two lost souls in "Jab Harry Met Sejal" trailer

"What you seek, is seeking you": this famous Rumi quote makes the central thread of Imtiaz Ali's next, "Jab Harry Met Sejal", starring Shah Rukh Khan and Anushka Sharma.

Though the film's long teaser and songs are already out and film enthusiasts know about the film's backdrop, the makers released a new three-minute trailer, reports Hindustan Times.

It features Shah Rukh Khan as tour guide Harinder Singh Nehra, who is slowly falling for a Gujarati tourist Sejal (Anushka Sharma). The twist in the tale is that Sejal is already engaged to somebody and seems like a traditional homely girl.

Anushka is seen looking for a ring even as SRK tries to convince her against it. It is quite possible that the movie revolves around Anushka's search for the ring.

They begin to know each other through friendly banters and beautiful locales till the day of her return arrives.

The theme is not new for Imtiaz Ali, so nothing comes as a shocker, but Shah Rukh and Anushka's comfort level with each other gives the trailer a much desired flow.

The film was shot in Budapest, Punjab and Prague. Shah Rukh and Anushka earlier worked together in "Rab Ne Bana Di Jodi" (2008) and "Jab Tak Hai Jaan" (2012).

The film will hit theatres on August 4.
