Pioneering school MUN in Chittagong

QUAZI TAHMEEDUL MUNIR

With the theme “Sustainable Development Ensuring Preservation of Environment”, CCPC Model United Nations 2017 was held from July 26-29, 2017, at Chittagong Cantonment Public College, marking the inception of institutional school Model United Nations (MUN) in the port city.

MUN is a simulation of the proceedings of United Nations (UN) which introduces students to the world of diplomacy, negotiation, and decision making. At MUNs, students step into the shoes of ambassadors of member states of UN where they are known as “delegates”, and debate on issues or “agendas” assigned to them. They prepare draft resolutions, plot strategy, negotiate with supporters and adversaries, resolve conflicts, and navigate the UN's rules of procedure – all in the interest of resolving problems that affect the world.

CCPC Model United Nations 2017 (CCPCMUN 2017) highlighted the role of MUN in creating the leaders of tomorrow - a platform where every voice matters. The conference, organised by CCPC Model United Nations Club was the first ever institutional school level MUN in Chittagong, which hosted over 200 students from all over the country who participated as delegates of different countries of the world. With the lowest registration fees offered for a four day conference, CCPCMUN 2017 was a sheer reflection of its motto – “low cost, high quality”, highlighting an initiative to make MUN accessible to all.

Spanning across seven committees – United Nations Security Council, Bangladesh Parliament, UNGA1: Disarmament and International Security, Human Rights Council, UNICEF, UN Women and International Press, and twelve agendas highlighting the most pressing issues of the world, CCPCMUN

2017 lived up to its promise of an intense four days of diplomatic battle. The delegates engaged themselves in heated debates and negotiated their way to drafting resolutions to be presented and voted upon in the closing plenary.

Major General Jahangir Kabir Talukder, GOC, 24th Infantry Division, graced the occasion of the closing ceremony with his presence as the chief guest, which took place at Bhatiyari Golf and Country Club in July 29, 2017.

Twenty-six delegates from seven committees were awarded in the closing ceremony, marking the end of four days of a thrilling journey of diplomacy.

Types of annoying people I met in online games

ZARIN RAYHANA

THE VAINGLORIOUS NERD RAGER

These are the kind of people who take the game way too seriously, and when they play, their adrenaline goes into overdrive. Throwing fits of rage and blaming others are their conventions. Even if you are sure you are doing nothing wrong, the vainglorious nerd ragers will find faults in your techniques. They could write a book on what you did wrong, and if you disagree, they will go all curmudgeons on you, reminding you that they have been professionals since the Byzantine era. However, no matter how much you hate their snob-bishness, they sometimes have the best methods to win.

THE AWOL NOOB

When he first begins to play, this person is like a sponge: curious to know everything. He is also quite well-mannered and enthusiastic, and as he finally starts to gear up properly, you become assured he will be a worthy team member. However, a few days later, he stops playing. If he comes back, it is temporary, and he is sure to have a lame excuse by his side. Give it a few more days and he will permanently vanish off the face of the pixel world.

THE BLUE JASMINE

“Is it wrong that I'm playing video games when I should be doing my homework? I'm a disappointment to my parents, aren't I?”

“Hey guys, sorry I couldn't play last night. I was actually up crying on my pillow because my boyfriend seems to have forgotten about our half anniversary. Turns out, he was talking to another girl. What am I going to do with my life? Nobody cares about me.”

“I'm sorry I'm such a disappointment both here and IRL. But then, without pain, how could we know joy?”

THE HOPELESS ROMANTIC

Every game has those. Boy and girl live ten thousand miles away from each other, yet make googly eyes at each other's grainy profile pictures, and fill in the group chat with gag-worthy, sappy dialogues. One of them actually told me that their friend found the love of his life through that game, and ended up marrying.

THE GARRULOUS NEEDY INVALID

This person puts a half-hearted effort into the game, accomplishes nothing whatsoever, and spends ninety percent of his time chatting about a Game of Thrones episode. He seems to have less responsibility IRL than your blue discus aquarium fish, for whenever you log into the game, he is online and immediately pops up with questions about any recently released movies or a story about what his friend's dog did in Greece.
