Two container-transport trucks block a large portion of the Airport Road while making a right turn, creating a tailback on both sides of the road in the port city's Salt Gola crossing area. This has become a regular phenomenon since some container depots were set up in the area. As a result, thousands, including workers, patients and airport goers, who use the road on a regular basis, continue to bear the brunt. According to locals, these trucks are also parked on the roadsides, worsening the traffic situation further. The photo was taken on Thursday.

Terrible toilets

Ctg public lavatories not suitable for women

FM MIZANUR RAHAMAN, Ctg

In a busy city like Chittagong, where around 60 lakh of its commuters have to spend a huge chunk of time on roads, there are only 43 public toilets for them.

Women are the worst sufferers as none of these public toilets are suitable for them, who despite necessity avoid using those.

The toilets are in an appalling state due to a lack of maintenance and negligence of the authorities concerned.

Of the 43 toilets, which are leased out by the Chittagong City Corporation, three are closed due to complexities in leasing procedures, while another one is closed for renovation, according to CCC officials.

Visiting some of the public toilets recently in Railway Station, New Market and Halishahar Boropool areas it was seen that the inside of the lavatories was damp and not properly cleaned. Most of the doors were unhinged and the overall conditions were unhygienic.

Sirajum Munira, a private company employee, said, "I don't use the public toilets. There are no toilet facilities for women. On some of the doors, they [caretakers of the toilets] write 'for women', but those are used by men frequently."

Kamrun Nahar Sanjida, a final-year student of Chittagong University, said, "Just by looking at the toilets from outside gives me the creeps..."

"It is the duty of the city corporation to ensure toilet facilities for all. They are showing an utter negligence in this regard," she added.

Khursida Akhter, a garment worker in EPZ area, echoed Munira and Sanjida.

This respondent also spoke to some of the leaseholders. They, however, claimed that the toilets were in "a good condition and being taken care of properly".

On the other hand, the caretaker of the public toilet in Boropool area pointed towards an almost unhinged door and said, "Look, we have written 'women' on it. They [women] can use it."

When asked about its unhygienic condition, he evaded the question.

Contacted, Sahed Iqbal Babu, councilor of Ward 2 (Jalalabad area), said,

"There are no public toilets in my ward. There is an inter-district bus terminal in the area (Oxygen), used by many. But a lack of public toilets makes people suffer."

"It is true that women are suffering due to the problem. We are trying to set up a public toilet in the area soon," he said.

Contacted, Ujjal Sikdar, an activist of Dushtha Shasthya Kendra, a development organisation, said, "Public toilets are not suitable for women." He said they have tried to set up women-friendly public toilets, but failed due to a lack of space.

"We are renovating a public toilet in Lal Dighi area, which will be women-friendly. The work will be finished by next month," he added.

Women not objects

Say experts at Dhaka Lit Fest

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Men should consider women as human beings, not objects, said experts at a discussion at the Dhaka Literary Festival (DLF) yesterday.

They also urged the guardians to teach moral education to their children.

They were speaking at a session called "Dharshan -- Pourush er Khamata, Pourush er Akhhamata" (Rape -- Man's power, man's inability) on the last day of DLF on Bangla Academy premises.

Prof Sadeka Halim of Sociology department at Dhaka University said women do not get equal opportunity all over the Indian sub-continent, and Bangladesh is no exception.

"Women have been given a prescribed role to play and people want them to perform that particular role," she said.

Women rights activist Rita Das Roy said the person who rapes a woman thinks that he has the right to do so. "They do not realise that it is a crime."

Bina Biswas, a Tagore scholar, said parents should impart the lesson of gender equality to their children from the earliest stage of their lives so that they grow up respecting each other.

Meanwhile, at a different session of the day titled, "Woman, Art and Politics", discussants also underscored the need for teaching children the notion of gender equality.

Indian actress Nandana Sen, also a child rights activist, said although teaching children about violence against women is a difficult task, they need to be taught in such a way that they care for the sensitive issue.

Biga Chual, a writer from Australia, said women have to be vocal about their own rights.

"We have to tell our stories," she said, adding that the culture of respecting women should be practised in every sector.

Esther Frued, novelist; Sadaf Saaz, director of DLF; and Bee Rowlatt, a broadcast journalist; were also present during the session.
