Bhumi Pednekar continues breaking stereotypes

PALLAB BHATTACHARYA, New Delhi

Bollywood actress Bhumi Pednekar has broken stereotypes even before the release of her debut film "Dum Laga Ke Haisha", a content-driven movie which was critically acclaimed and fetched her a Filmfare award for best debut female actor. And now she wants to smash more stereotypes including gender discrimination in the family.

After "Dum Laga Ke Haisha", the actress chose films like "Toilet: Ek Prem Katha" and "Shubh Mangal Savdhan", both of which talked about unconventional subjects carrying key social messages.

At the 48th edition of the International Film Festival of India 2017, Pednekar spoke extensively about women breaking stereotypes during a candid conversation with movie buffs and her fans in Goa on Saturday.

Pednekar said, "Being overweight was linked to being depressed for a long time and I was happy that a film like 'Dum Laga Ke Haisha'

Theatre lovers of port city were captivated by the performance of "Gondar", a Bangla adaptation of Eugene Ionesco's play "Rhinoceros", on Saturday evening held at the city's Alliance Française auditorium.

Fame, a renowned Chittagong based theatre troupe staged the play with the support of Alliance Française de Chittagong.

The play was jointly translated by Kabir Chowdhury and Shaonli Mitra while Ashim Das, of Chittagong University, directed the play.

"Rhinoceros" depicts a curious story of the dwellers of a small French city. All the people of the city are gradually transformed into rhinos after an epidemic breaks out. But only Bérenger, a perplexed average Joe who is often criticised by his friends for his drinking habits and indolence -- does not transform into a rhino with this mass metamorphosis.

As the mass transformation ensues, Bérenger along with his colleague Daisy (with whom he is hopelessly in love with) try to resist and agrees to get married to restore the human race.

But soon afterwards, changing her mind, Daisy starts to admire the rhinos' enthusiasm and energy and transforms into a rhino.

Bérenger was firm not to transform and later declares, "I'm the last man, I will stay till the end! I'm not giving up!"

The story has been written based on World War II and it is thought that the theme of the play was the response to the sudden upsurge of Communism, Fascism and Nazism prior to World War II.

Aibir Mandal played the role of Bérenger while Nishigandha Dasgupta enacted the role of Daisy.

Abdul Kader Jitu, Salauddin Bappy, Poly Chowdhury, Sabiha Binte Jashim, Ashrafa Hossain, Mubidur Rahman, Khadijatul Kubra, Kamal Barua, Rumel Barua and Dipta Chakrabarty performed other roles.

Before the show, the Charge d'Affaires of the Embassy of France in Bangladesh Jean Pierre Poncet and Director of Alliance Française de Chittagong Dr. Selvam Thorez delivered welcome speeches.

OYSHEE looks forward to new releases

ROBINA RASHID BHUIYAN

Popular singer Fatima Tuz Zohra Oyshee has her hands full these days -- with new singles being released, the singer will also have credits in several films for playback singing. To top off her busy schedule, the singer is a medical student, and is passionate in her aim of becoming a doctor.

Oyshee's most recent venture is a duet single titled "Tor Bhalobasha" with Belal Khan, released a week ago as a music video. The single, written by Ishraq Ahmed, is also composed by Belal Khan with Meer Masum behind musical arrangements. "The song is about young love, aimed at people in their twenties or younger," elaborated Oyshee.

The singer has recently finished recording a funky dance number to be released under the CMV banner, titled "Pappi". Written by Shajeeb Shahriar, the singer revealed that the number contains dialogues as well as singing, with some EDM elements. The single is slated to be up for release soon, with a date yet to be fixed. "I feel very enthusiastic about this venture, and I look forward to the response it will generate," added the singer.

A great deal of Oyshee's time is being invested in playback singing for several upcoming movies. The singer has recorded a number for the Badrul Anam Saud-helmed "Gohin Baluchor", as well as a folksy number for "Dulabhai Zindabaad". She has also wrapped up recording a song to be featured in "Ontorjala", and "Pashan", for which she sang the title song.

"I love playback singing. I enjoy the challenge of embodying a character's emotions and personality through song. It's never boring, and each song is a welcome change," she said.

Her comfort in performing within a wide variety of genres is why the singer is able to look forward to such versatile projects. "My parents ensured that my training groomed me to tackle any song comfortably, but every artiste has a personal preference, and for me that would be folk rock. I believe it suits my

Redmayne, Jones in talks to reunite for "The Aeronauts"

"The Theory of Everything" stars Eddie Redmayne and Felicity Jones are in negotiations to re-team in Amazon Studios' "The Aeronauts", sources tell Variety. "War & Peace's" Tom Harper is attached to direct from a script by Jack Thorne.

The screenplay is based on the true story of balloon pilot Amelia Wren (who would be played by Jones) and scientist James Glaisher (Redmayne) who, in 1862, embarked on an extraordinary journey to discover the secrets of the heavens. In the process, they flew higher in an open balloon than anyone had before or has since. They made breathtaking discoveries, but as they ascended to the highest points of the atmosphere, they were forced into an epic fight for survival.

Mandeville Films' Todd Lieberman and David Hoberman are producing the film.

Harper is also producing. Amazon nabbed the spec last winter after a heated bidding war. It's currently unknown when production will commence.

Redmayne, who won an Oscar for playing Stephen Hawking in "The Theory of Everything," is now the star of the "Harry Potter" spinoff "Fantastic Beasts and Where to Find Them." He is filming the sequel, "Fantastic Beasts: The Crimes of Grindelwald," which bows next November.

Jones received an Academy Award nomination for her role as Jane Hawking in "The Theory of Everything." She recently starred in "Star Wars: Rogue One." Redmayne is repped by CAA and United Agents. Jones is repped by WME and Independent Talent Group.
