A special day for Lavlu

SHAH ALAM SHAZU

Popular artiste Salahuddin Lavlu initially carved his reputation as a TV and theatre actor. He went on to reach the heights of success as a director, but is expected to be the centre of special attention from fans and loved ones on his birthday today. The Daily Star caught up with the artiste who is currently shooting for a play in Kushtia town:

What have you have planned for today?
 Lavlu: As you can tell, I am swamped with filming right now, so I doubt I'd have any time for a moment to myself. It appears that this is nothing out of the ordinary, as I always seem to have work commitments on my birthday. However, luck has favoured me this time, for Kushtia is my hometown, and this is the first time I've had the opportunity to work here on such a special day.
But surely your family and friends have something planned for you?
 Lavlu: I am sure that they have already started preparations. My family and friends always go out of their way to do something special for me. Tonight they will arrange for a special dinner, followed by a cake. I feel truly blessed.

What are your reflections on turning another year?
 Lavlu: I feel as though there is still much left to accomplish. It is alarming to think how quickly the years fly by. I hope to remain healthy and strong for the years to come, so that I can achieve what my heart is set on.
What are you currently filming in Kushtia?
 Lavlu: I am filming a new drama series titled "Priyo Din Priyo Raat", scripted by Kazi Shahidul Islam. All my plays have been set in rural areas, but for the first time I have chosen the setting of a small town. All the memories of my boyhood and college years are flooding back; this series is an emotionally significant one for me.
Are there any added advantages to filming a venture in your hometown?
 Lavlu: For a few years now, I have been returning to Kushtia to film a few Eid plays. My directorial debut, "Dichokrojaan", was filmed here. For the first time I am directing a drama series in this town. The biggest advantage is that I am surrounded by familiar faces, who are always there to extend a helping hand when needed. It feels like I am working from home, which is great.

World Economic Forum summit at Davos Crystal Award for socially conscious celebrities

PALLAB BHATTACHARYA, New Delhi

Awards and accolades are nothing new for Bollywood's superstar Shah Rukh Khan. But the one conferred on him at a function in snow-covered Davos, Switzerland, on Monday night was special in more ways than one.
 Khan received the 24th Crystal Award along with music legend Elton John and actress Cate Blanchett at a ceremony, which opened the annual World Economic Forum summit in the Swiss ski resort of Davos. The ceremony celebrates the achievements of outstanding artists who have shown exemplary commitment to improving the state of the world.
 Khan was bestowed the honour for "His leadership in championing children's and women's rights in India," the World Economic Forum (WEF) said.
 Khan, one of Hindi cinema's most globally recognised faces, is also a founder of a non-profit foundation which provides support to female victims of acid attacks and major burn injuries through medical treatment, legal aid, vocational training, rehabilitation and livelihood support. In his award acceptance speech, Khan said "we, the powerful, need to get out of the way, to pick the barriers apart, the ones that give us names and faces and colours and hierarchies."

 "That is what I have learned from my beautifully scarred women," he added.
 At the award-giving function, Khan did not let go another opportunity to showcase his prowess to be at his wittiest best. He publicly wanted to take a selfie with Cate Blanchett but quipped that it would leave his kids embarrassed. The audience broke into peals of laughter. That was a typical Khan humour.
 "Honoured to receive the World Economic Forum's 24th Crystal Award, together with Elton John and Hollywood actress Cate Blanchett. My fan moment," Bollywood's most bankable actor tweeted after receiving the honour.
 Blanchett received the Crystal Award for her work with refugees while British singer-songwriter Elton John got his for his charitable work with his AIDS foundation.
 Blanchett, who has won two Oscars, was named a Goodwill Ambassador for UN's refugee agency UNHCR in May 2016. As part of her role, the actor has travelled to Lebanon and Jordan to meet refugees displaced by the Syrian conflict.
 Among the past winners of the Crystal Award are Amitabh Bachchan, danseuse Mallika Sarabhai, composer A R Rahman, actress Shabana Azmi, sitarists Ravi Shankar and sarod maestro Amjad Ali Khan.
