

You have forsaken me

Winter brought along the cold nights where our kombols would actually see some use. We could actually wear our woollen jackets and not feel like we're in the Sahara. Boots didn't feel like they were boiling our feet. Walking in the streets would not be a sweaty ordeal. However, after just two weeks, it seems the temperature in Dhaka is returning to the infernal state it was in.

I wish winter would've stayed longer in Dhaka. I will miss the cold wind and pithas. Pithas is the name of my pet dog.

APP REVIEW

RUN FOR YOUR LIFE

SHAH TAZRIAN ASHRAFI
 Platforms: Android, iOS

"Zombies, Run!" is a rather dramatic shift to a regular running app, with engaging zombie apocalypse based storylines. It's basically designed to make running more motivating since the thrilling missions are engrossing and help a user run accordingly.

Each season has a specific number of missions, and the time for each mission usually extends from 35 minutes to an hour. The first four missions are free, and only after completing those, one gets unlocked every week. From walking indoors, jogging in a park to running on a treadmill and more, it works anywhere at any speed.

To use the app, you have to plug in your headphone and turn on device location as your distance per unit time is counted. It lets you blend your favourite playlist with the action-packed story. It comes with a feature called "Chases". Upon its activation, you are alerted of the herds of zombies around, which calls for a speeding up period. If you don't speed up, the herd takes you down. As you keep using the app, your character automatically collects supplies for the base and defends it. There's also an online synchronising option to share your progress.

Stay focused on running, collect your supplies for the apocalypse, build your base, speed up when chased by zombies, be the hero of the story, and stay fit.
