

IT'S TIME TO WRITE LETTER

Personal letters can be divided into two broad categories, based on the intended recipient: person-to-person letters and person-to-business letters.

It is important to note that a lot of confusion exists as to what are true personal letters and what are NOT personal letters. For example, a "cover letter" used to transmit a report is NOT a personal letter - it is a business letter. On the other hand, a "cover letter" for a resume or c.v. IS a personal letter.

Letters that some people loosely define as personal letters which are NOT personal letters at all include: covering letters, employee letters, introduction letters, marketing letters, publicity letters, project letters, customer relation letters, financial and credit letters, order-related letters, sales and marketing letters, follow-up letters, announcements, fundraising letters, among others.

Today, we'll focus on letter of condolence and apology. Read the letters carefully and look at the style and tone of personal attachment in them.

Condolence letters, or letters of condolence, are also known as sympathy letters. Sending such letters is appropriate in various personal and business situations in which some sort of loss or tragedy has occurred, such as a death. They should always be sincere and heartfelt. Personal condolence letters should usually be handwritten.

Dear Rahul:

I would like to express my sincere condolences on the recent demise of your father. My wife Pamela and the children are equally shocked to learn and through this letter, they are sending their prayers to you and your family at this difficult time.

Although I didn't know your father that well, but over the years I have met him a good number of times and have realized his great kindness and compassion towards those less fortunate than him. And I do know that he was very highly respected throughout this community and profession, and his good works changed the lives of many around him.

You were truly fortunate to have such a man who has guided you and nurtured you all these years.

As you know, it was not that long ago that my own father passed away, so I know what you and your family are going through. In fact, no word of comfort is quite enough to replace the loss.

Please pass my deepest sympathies on to your mother, and brother, and sister, and to all other family members.

Yours in sympathy,

Anik

A personal letter of apology, or apology letter, should be short and sincere. If you are going to write one at all, make sure it is heartfelt, or there is really no point. Sending someone a sincere letter of apology can have significant impact, and can go a long way towards patching up interpersonal differences. The sample apology letter below is from one neighbor to another.

Dear Masud:

Re: Parking Garage Problem

Please regard this as a letter of apology for the recent problems that I caused you by moving your belongings in the parking garage without your permission.

Believe me, I had no intention of causing you any problems. Over the long weekend I decided to rearrange my space in the garage and install some new shelving on the front wall opposite my parking space. While I was at it I thought I would also tidy up the entire garage. It was during that process that I noticed that your boxes of books were stored dangerously close to the high-voltage electric cables. So, I took the liberty of moving those boxes to the other side of the garage. It didn't occur to me at the time that this would block the entry and exit on the passenger side of your vehicle.

After you brought this to my attention Monday evening I immediately moved your boxes back to where they were stored originally. As you suggested, by stacking them carefully I was able to place them so that there was sufficient safe clearance from the electric cables. I trust you will find everything in order now.

I'm really sorry that I didn't check with you first before moving your belongings. I can now see how it would have upset you to return after the holiday weekend and find your belongings moved for no apparent reason. All I can say is that it won't happen again.

Sincerely,

Galib

Online deliveries clogging up city streets

The huge surge in the popularity of online shopping is creating chaos on the streets of our cities and on our road networks. As the number of online deliveries is skyrocketing, the number of delivery trucks making sure we get our parcels has also increased. The result is that hundreds more trucks are clogging up city streets. This is increasing congestion and adding to levels of pollution. There are literally hundreds more delivery trucks in cities around the world all trying to get time. Delivery drivers are battling for often non-existent parking spaces. Many are forced to park double, gridlock for other delivery drivers. The BBC reports that the volume of deliveries surged by almost 50 per cent between 2014 and 2016, could continue to rise up to 28 per cent a next three years. Many cities are taking tough measures to counteract the problems associated with the increasing number of deliveries. Many cities in Europe and Asia have barred deliveries during times when roads are busiest. London is looking at the possibility of using buses for parcel deliveries. Some areas of London are also cracking down on food delivery motorbikes after their streets were being 'swarmed' by scooter riders. Food delivery companies in one London district must now apply for permission to operate.

solve the issue of global warming is the individual level social awareness. People must be aware of its meaning, cause, bad effects and other things about global warming to get it eradicated from worldwide and make the possibilities of life on earth forever as usual. People should stop producing CO2 by just stopping their bad habits such as stop the use of oil, coal and gas, inhibit cutting plants, minimize the use of electricity, etc. Just small changes in everyone's life all over the world, we can be able to stop the huge negative changes in the atmosphere by lessening the effects of global warming and even stop it at a day.
