

BRUNO MARS

The Star of Grammy Awards 2018!

Bruno Mars is already known as one of the most successful singers of current generation. But the true testament to his dedication and hard work came in the form of multiple accolades at the Grammy Awards 2018 ceremony, held earlier this week at New York's Madison Square Garden. Grabbing the awards for the "Best R&B Performance", "Best R&B Song" as well as the coveted "Song of the Year" for his super-hit song That's What I Like, Bruno Mars showed the world that he still has what it takes to rack in the biggest achievements of all times. That's not all, as his hit album 24K Magic was also the recipient of multiple awards; namely the "Best R&B Album" and "Best Engineered Album, Non-Classical", in addition to the two biggest awards: "Record of the Year" and "Album of the Year". Needless to say, 2017 was Bruno Mars's year, and considering the success he keeps on garnering, he doesn't seem to want to stop anytime soon!

Kesha encourages the "MeToo Movement" in Grammy Awards

While Grammy Awards 2018 was a night filled with wonderful performances by the likes of Kendrick Lamar, Lady Gaga and Bruno Mars, it was the pop singer Kesha who touched the most hearts with her stirring performance. Singing her hit-single Praying to the numerous celebrities in attendance dressed in all-white, Kesha openly showed support to the "MeToo Movement" which she sternly believes in. Through her song she referenced the horrible experience of being a victim of sexual assault, and intended to encourage other women in the industry to move forward and share their experience as well. It has been known for a long time that Kesha's former producer Dr. Luke was alleged to be a sexual offender, though no official confirmation has been made yet. Fans called Kesha "fearless" for this brave approach, and her message was well-received by the women present.
