

It took us more than 20 years of friendship and waiting to finally manage to go on a trip aboard. We had dreamed of all of us getting out of the country together while we were in college uniforms, and one fine day we decided to make it happen.

The destination had to be serene, beautiful, new for all, and of course, the trip had to be long enough to allow enough time to immerse in 20-years' worth of memories. So, we ended up to the land of blue mountains where people believe in dragons. The Land of the Thunder Dragon, The Kingdom in the Sky, The Land of the Hidden Treasures— Bhutan has been called many mysterious and enchanting names. For a country that remained essentially disconnected from the outside world until the 1960s, it should come as no surprise that they didn't have TV till the 1990s!
