

DEEPIKA to turn producer

While the marriage rumors of Deepika Padukone and Ranveer Singh are still afloat in the air, new revelations have been unearthed to the surface. A recent newspaper report has stated that Deepika has shown interest in being a producer, following the footsteps of Priyanka Chopra and Anushka Sharma who had also turned from actor to producer in the past. It is currently unconfirmed what the name of her production house would be, but it has been reported that it is in the process of creation. It has also been further stated that Deepika wishes to be involved in producing "content-driven films" that will provide quality entertainment and not just emphasize on commercial value. Three years ago Deepika had alluded to her desire of being a producer in an interview, saying that she feels she has the right attitude to be an efficient producer. "I don't want to be a producer because I want to make money," was her definitive statement regarding the matter.

Source: Times of India

Varun Dhawan's 'October' picks up the pace

Despite not being in showbiz for too long, Varun Dhawan has established himself as one of the most successful Bollywood actors of recent times. All of the nine films he has partaken in has met with commercial success and gained immense popularity among the fans. While there were some initial doubts regarding his latest film October due to its slow pace in the box office right after release, it seems even that worry is now a thing of the past. In the first three days, October amassed Rs 20.25 crore, and despite the shaky start, has really picked up the pace throughout the weekdays. Experts claim the steady growth should make October a lasting impact in the box office, but as far as Varun Dhawan is considered, he has successfully starred in yet another hit film.

Source: The Indian Express

Why Kangana Ranaut Abstains Social Media

Kangana Ranaut is known for many things; being one of the highest-paid Bollywood actors, earning multiple awards, possessing a fabulous fashion sense and of course, never backing down from an honest piece of opinion. While she frequently voices controversial thoughts regarding gender roles and other Bollywood stars, this time she has commented on why she doesn't like social media. "I feel it's so consuming," stated the actor in a recent TV programme, "Sometimes my agents tell me to open an account and that they would post for me. I feel that's wrong because I haven't done anything in life where I wasn't involved in it myself." She further said that on social media, people are prone to be dishonest with others and themselves, and she wants to stay away from doing such things. "It is sort of like having a fake relationship," commented Kangana Ranaut, who doesn't feel that it's mandatory to be on social media, even if it's for branding and sponsorship. Considering the influence of celebrities on Twitter and Facebook, many consider it a shame to not have her on the same boat as well.

Source: The Indian Express

