

An example of honesty

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

It was around 9:00am in the morning. Like any other day, Sergeant Samaresh Mandal was discharging duty along with his colleagues near a fish market in Merul Badda area in the capital on Tuesday.

Suddenly, he saw a bundle of money lying on the road.

The police officer of traffic (north division) picked up the bundle, not more than Tk 1 lakh, and tried to find the owner. But nobody was around.

Samaresh then informed the incident to his senior officials right away and waited there till 12:30pm, hoping that the person whom the money belonged to might come by.

Since nobody showed up, he handed the money over to the custody of Dhaka Metropolitan Police media office.

GRAFT ALLEGATIONS

ACC summons DIG Mizan May 3

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Anti-Corruption Commission (ACC) yesterday summoned Deputy Inspector General Mizanur Rahman, for quizzing him over amassing wealth illegally, among other corruption allegations.

In a letter sent to the Inspector General of Police, the anti-graft watchdog asked Mizanur to appear at its Segunbagicha office in the capital on May 3, said an ACC official seeking anonymity.

ACC's deputy director Farid Ahmed Patwary is probing the matter.

In its letter, ACC requested IGP to take necessary steps to ensure presence of Mizanur at its office on the stipulated date and time.

Mizan was withdrawn as the Additional Commissioner of Dhaka Metropolitan Police (DMP) and attached to the Police Headquarters on January 10.

Mizan allegedly picked up 25-year-old Moriam Akter Eko from in front of her Panthapath house on July 15 last year and then forcibly married her, according to a statement of Moriam's mother Queen Talukdar.

In the statement sent to different media outlets, Queen Talukdar also alleged that her daughter was implicated in a false case and was jailed for three weeks. She got out of prison on bail a week ago.

Earlier in December last year, the same police official's name surfaced in the media for allegedly picking up a female news presenter of a private television channel at gunpoint.

On February 27, the investigation committee submitted a probe report on DIG Mizan to the Discipline and Professional Standard wing of Police Headquarters (PHQ).

Physiotherapy still understated

Prothom Alo roundtable told

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Physiotherapy, a useful part of modern treatment, is not getting proper recognition in the country as it deserves, said speakers yesterday.

Therefore, a proper recognition of physiotherapy is very necessary as it is ignored in many ways, they said.

The experts made the remarks at a roundtable organised by the Bangla daily Prothom Alo at its office in the capital.

The speakers also demanded that a regulatory body should be formed to ensure that real physiotherapists are providing treatment to patients, and a separate institution should be established for the physiotherapists so that they get proper education.

Ten percent people of the country are affected by different kinds of disabilities, and tens of thousands of people are affected by road accidents, and natural and manmade disasters. Physiotherapy is badly needed for these people, said Md Farid Uddin, general secretary of Bangladesh Physiotherapy Association (BPA), in his PowerPoint presentation.

Demanding appointment of physiotherapists in all government hospitals, Farid said where the country needs more and more physiotherapists, posts in the government hospitals are vacant.

Acknowledging the importance of physiotherapy, Social Welfare Minister Rashed Khan Menon said the government is going to prepare a law in this regard and it is under process.

Dalilur Rahman, president of BPA, said the necessity of physiotherapy is increasing in the society, and to fulfil the demand, it is necessary to appoint physiotherapists in all the government hospitals by creating posts.

Though there are around 3,000 graduate physiotherapists in the country, most of the posts in the government hospitals are vacant, he said.

"There are 1.50 crore elderly people in the country which will rise to 2 crore in 2020, 4 crore in 2050 and 5 crore in 2060, for which the necessity for physiotherapy is increasing day by day," said ASM Atiqur Rahman, secretary general of Bangladesh Association for the Aged and Institute of Geriatric Medicine.

The people, who are not actually physiotherapists, are running

Empathy promotes democracy

Agree young leaders of AL, BNP

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Young leaders of two major political parties have agreed that the practice of empathy among the political parties can ensure a healthy political culture in the country.

If the political leaders express empathy for their political opponents, the very practice can contribute to establishing a sound democratic culture, they emphasised.

They made the observation at the certificate giving ceremony of "Young Political Leaders Fellowship Programme" at a hotel in the capital yesterday.

US-based Democracy International (DI) organised the event to award certificates to the 21 young leaders from both ruling Awami League and BNP, who completed the programme.

The fellowship, started in December last year for four months, was provided under a project, titled "Strengthening Political Landscape", jointly funded by USAID and UKaid.

During the fellowship period, the political leaders learned various issues including the role of political parties in a democracy, intra-party democracy and campaign management as well as promoting peaceful elections.

Besides, during the programme, the leaders from the two major parties worked together to solve different problems such as waterlogging and waste management in their respective communities.

Speaking at the ceremony as a guest, AL Organising Secretary Barrister Mohibul Hassan Chowdhury said, "Empathy is necessary to maintain a healthy political culture."

He reminded the young leaders that politics should be practised for the betterment of people.

So, the competition to grab the state power shrugging off the interest of the people cannot be considered a good practice, he added.

Another guest speaker, Rasheda Begum Hira, training affairs secretary of BNP, said the culture of political mudslinging discourages young generation from getting
