Shujan Secretary Badiul Alam Majumder conducted the programme. He sought promises from the voters that they would vote for candidates with clean image who are not involved in corruption and crimes.

In Gazipur, Returning Officer Rakib Uddin Mondol said police will have to consult with them before carrying out any drive before the Gazipur City Corporation (GCC) election.

He was talking to reporters at his office in the city.

Rakib said he will talk to the deputy commissioner and the district police superintendent in this regard.

Asked whether the arrest of 45 Jamaat leaders including its district ameer is tantamount to the interference in the election atmosphere, he said they are investigating the matter.

Election to Khulna and Gazipur city corporations are scheduled to be held on May 15.

KCC is formed with 31 general wards and 10 reserved wards with around 4.93 lakh voters. GCC is formed with 57 general wards and 19 reserved wards with around 11.64 lakh voters.

out both groups from the mosque," the DC said. "Outsiders will not be able to stay inside the mosque. If anyone wants to attend prayers, they can."

The mosque sources said a meeting will be held with Home Minister Asaduzzaman Khan Kamal to resolve the crisis once he returns from abroad.

The conflict between the two factions started at the last Biswa Ijtema, the second largest Muslim congregation after the hajj.

Hefajat-e-Islam first tried to prevent Saad's arrival because they were strongly opposed to his participation in the Ijtema. Their opposition stemmed from allegations of what Hefajat leaders claimed to be "controversial statements about the Quran and Sunnah" that Saad had made.

They demanded an apology from Maulana Saad for the "statements" if he wished to attend the Ijtema.

Finally, the top leader of the Tablighi Jamaat Maulana Saad, who had been conducting the Akheri Munajat (concluding prayers) for the last three years, had to return to New Delhi without joining this year's Biswa Ijtema.

Earlier, the two groups clashed at least four times, centring on Saad's speech. The home minister mediated between the two factions.

According to the mosque sources, there are 11 Shura members. Of them, five members are led by Maulana Jubayer and six others by Wasiful Islam. They are followers of Maulana Saad. Recently, Saad appointed two new Shura members, with which the other group did not agree.

On Thursday, several thousand students from 10 to 12 Qawmi madrasas, who are against the Maulana Saad group, started gathering at Kakrail Mosque.

On Friday morning, the anti-Saad group led by Maulana Jubayer held a meeting and announced that they will not let Maulana Saad preach any sermon in Bangladesh.

Tension arose inside the mosque. Police were deployed to avoid any untoward situation. Police also recovered two mobile phone jammers from the mosque. Police said it is still under investigation to know who set up the jammers inside the mosque.

Meanwhile, there was a gathering of Dhaka district Tablighi Jamaat in Zinda Bahar mosque in Old Dhaka yesterday.

After the gathering, the followers of Maulana Saad decided to protest the incident. Around 1,000 people then came to Kakrail Mosque around 9:30am.

"While we were trying to enter the mosque, the Qawmi madrasa students obstructed us. Heated words were exchanged and they also beat up a few followers of Maulana Saad," said Jahangir Alam, a follower of Saad.

After police got all the protesters out of the mosque premises, Saad's followers beat up one of the madrasa students, named Jakaria.

Yesterday afternoon, this correspondent found some foreign guests and murubbis staying inside the mosque. Other people from both groups were leaving the area.

The Tablighi Jamaat, known as a non-political global religious movement, came into being in 1927 in India. Maulana Ilyas Kandhalvi founded the religious movement, which has an estimated 7 to 8 crore followers in more than 150 countries, majority of whom are based in South Asia.

According to sources at Kakrail Mosque, considered the headquarters of the Tablighi Jamaat in Bangladesh, all decisions regarding Ijtema and selection of Shura members are made after consultation with the organisation's headquarters in Nizamuddin Markaj (centre) in New Delhi, India.

Maulana Saad played a key role in those consultations. But it did not happen this year as the Shura members in India and Bangladesh have a sharp division over Saad's "controversial statements".

A rift in Tablighi's leadership has been going on in India for the last two years but there had been no problems in Bangladesh until this year's protest by Hefajat.

We must break free

the birth of India and Pakistan, liberals and nationalists have had their limitations in forgoing the concept of personal ownership and embracing the establishment of communal ownership.

The nearly two-hour lecture branched out into various aspects of political history of the subcontinent, including the emergence of India and Pakistan, and eventually Bangladesh. "Subhash Chandra Bose was out and out a Bangalee. He came into politics under the leadership of Chittaranjan Das, who tried to keep the politics of Bengal separate from the politics of India. But his untimely demise put a brake on that," Prof Serajul said.

"Subhas Bose eventually practised Indian politics. If he could have kept the two separate, the history of the Partition could have been different," he added.

Prof Serajul said the class division question must be solved. "In undivided Bengal, we could not solve the nationalist equation of 52 percent Muslims and 48 percent non-Muslims; in Pakistan it became 56 percent Bengalees and 44 percent non-Bengalees, and now in Bangladesh it is 20 percent beneficiaries and 80 percent deprived."

To solve this, he said, "We must break this societal system; not to create anarchy, but to liberate creativity and create equal opportunities and rights for all, and to create a new world of communal ownership."

"The fundamental failure to launch pro-people politics that will dismantle the class system has brought us at a crossroads, and it will only get worse," Prof Serajul said.

He concluded by saying that nationalists have given all they could, and what needs to be done now, must be done by communists.

public memory, he said, citing the recent death of Rajib, a college student, who succumbed to his injuries after being sandwiched between two competing buses on Kazi Nazrul Islam Avenue.

He also pointed out that pedestrians often cross busy roads while talking on mobile phones or with their headphones on, which is another prime reason behind accidents.

A number of high officials were present on the occasion.
