

Twinkle Khanna threatened!

Akshay Kumar's portrayal of Commander Rustom Pavri in the film Rustom, based on the story of the real life ex-naval officer K. M. Nanavati, was well-received by fans and critics alike. Years after winning the National Award for Best Actor for the film, Akshay Kumar and his wife, the best-selling author and former actress Twinkle Khanna, have decided to auction off the costume of Commander Rustom. However, complaints have risen regarding how Twinkle Khanna in particular has no rights to sell a costume that was dedicated to an honest and hard-working civil officer, with a particular complaint threatening Khanna with physical abuse. "You touch our honor and we will give you a bloody nose," read a statement made by an acquaintance of the real-life K. M. Nanavati. Khanna, in response, have decided to take legal actions against this threat, saying, "As a society do we really think it's all right to threaten a woman with bodily harm?" It is to be noted that the auction is being held to raise funds for an animal welfare charity, so there is no obvious ill-will intended from Akshay and Twinkle Khanna in this specific matter.

Source: Internet

Ranbir Kapoor portrays Sanjay Dutt's look!

Ever since the news first got out, fans have been in constant anticipation to see Ranbir Kapoor depict Sanjay Dutt in the upcoming biopic Sanju. While there have been doubts regarding whether or not Ranbir could portray Sanjay Dutt accurately, a lot of naysayers have been proven otherwise when the director of the film, Rajkumar Hirani, officially revealed the poster of Sanju. In it, Ranbir sports the look of Sanjay Dutt we all know and love, and considering the story is based around the time Sanjay Dutt was released from jail in 2016, the stern approach seems fitting. Even though this type of a character is different from the Ranbir Kapoor roles we are used to, Rajkumar Hirani is confident that Ranbir will pull off a very convincing Sanjay Dutt for us all. Sanju is set to be released on June 29 this year.

Source: The Indian Express

Ranveer Dresses As

FREDDIE MERCURY!

Ranveer Singh has always been known for his quirky choice in fashion statement, donning the most unique attires to pay tribute to what he deems dear. Earlier this year at the 63rd Jio Filmfare Awards, he wore a custom-made suit containing images of the posters of his most favorite childhood films. Recently, during his trip to Switzerland, he paid tribute to the legendary singer Freddie Mercury by sporting a yellow jacket and white pants, in a style similar to the one the British rockstar made famous. Ranveer then posed in front of Freddie Mercury's 3-meter tall statue situated at Montreux, Switzerland and posted photos of his newest form of tribute on Instagram. Needless to say, fans went wild at Ranveer's sudden yet appreciated new getup, and of course, his show of respect to the immortal lead vocalist of Queen.

Source: The Indian Express

