

The explosive return of John!

After being on a hiatus from Bollywood for two years, John Abraham is back with a brand new film, which he has taken the task to co-produce as well. Titled Parmanu: The Story of Pokhran, the film is set in the year 1998 and revolves around the nuclear bomb tests conducted by the Indian Army in Pokhran during that time. The Pokhran nuclear testing holds significance in the military history of India, and eventually led to India being named as a nuclear state. John Abraham, feeling he could portray the story of Pokhran in an engaging manner, undertook the challenge in starring at this rather unique approach to a Bollywood movie. While initially delayed release due to clashes with Padmaavat, it was confirmed that Parmanu: The Story of Pokhran will be released next week, on 25 May. After an exciting trailer released last week, fans are in constant anticipation for the return of John Abraham.

FAMOUS BIRTHDAYS

CHER

*"Do you believe in life after love
I can feel something inside me say
I really don't think you're strong enough..."*

When it comes to classic pop, especially around the 80s and later, Cher is easily one of the most recognizable names. Often referred to as the Goddess of Pop in her primetime, she is an icon who has gifted the world with some of the most memorable tracks during her career spanning since the 1960s, tracks which include the likes of Believe, If I Could Turn Back Time, I Got You Babe, Half-

Breed and Dark Lady. She is active even now, despite her age, and has always been a dominant figure in the world of music. She has won a plethora of awards and has been an inspirational figure for many younger musical talents. This sensational singer turns 72 years old tomorrow. Star Showbiz wishes her an amazing birthday and much more success in the future!

Deadpool warns against spoilers!

Who doesn't hate spoilers? Having a crucial plot twist spoiled before watching a much-anticipated film is sure to rile anyone in the worst way possible. Ryan Reynolds feels the same, and he felt that he should personally warn those who love giving spoilers to their friends and acquaintances. Last week, his movie persona, the anti-hero mercenary Deadpool, posted a special message on Instagram, which stated that only a few people know the true plot of the upcoming Deadpool 2 film, which apparently does not include Ryan Reynolds himself. When watching the film, no one should say anything about the fun stuff and important scenes, because, in his words, "It'd be super lame to spoil the fact that Deadpool dies in this one." It should be noted that the message ended with, "Kidding. Not kidding. Kidding?" Was he kidding? Only time will tell, and hopefully no spoilers will ruin the revelation!
