as wifi zones in many parts of Sylhet. Ariful also promised to build truck and bus terminal and evict hawkers, to create a traffic am-free city. He also said the hawkers will be rehabilitated. In the manifesto, the BNP candidate promised to work for the underprivileged population living in the slums, by developing their sanitation facilities, and creating work opportunity for women.

Ariful also promised to build a "dream team" with the youths of the city, who will be given trainings, and will do research work for the development of the city.

He also laid out special plans for work on the underdeveloped southern part of Surma river belt in the city.

In Zubair's manifesto, he promised to expand Sylhet city as per the government gadget of 2006, that includes 18 nearby unions into the city, and to create a master-plan for development.

He promised to build a smart and green Sylhet city. Zubair also promised to remove hawkers from city footpaths, extend roads, and of a holiday market for hawkers. Like Ariful, Zubair also promised to work to meet the waterlogging crisis, drinking water crisis and management of waste. Zubair promised to work for the disadvantaged citizens living in slums of the city, and building several educational and vocational training institutes for students.

Bakshiganj and Gulshan branches.

Later, the entire amount was withdrawn in cash.

Mahbubul, Rashedul, Zia and Masudur landed in jail on April 10 after ACC arrested them in connection with the money laundering case while Ruzi Chisty has secured bail from the HC and a lower court.

Meanwhile, on June 6, the HC issued a rule asking the government and ACC to explain why Mahabubul should not be granted bail in the case.

The HC yesterday heard arguments from the respondents on the rule and rejected the bail prayer.

Barrister Moudud Ahmed appeared for Mahbubul.

Being sure of death

The door hit Payel as he was trying to get on the bus while running after it. Johny, Jamal and Faisal got out of the bus and carried an unconscious Payel to the nearby Bhaterchar bridge on the highway and dumped him into the canal below. Being sure of Payel's death, Jamal said, he drove the bus to Dhaka.

Saidur Rahman Payel, the 20-year-old BBA 5th semester student at NSU, was coming to Dhaka from Chittagong city on a Hanif Paribahan bus (licence number 9687) on Saturday night. His body was recovered from a canal under Bhaterchar bridge under Gazaria upazila on Dhaka-Chittagong highway Monday morning.

Digital Security Bill

the ICT Act will continue under the same act until the Digital Security Bill is passed into law, he said.

After the new law comes into effect, some controversial sections including Section 57 of the Information and Communication Technology Act (ICT) will cease to exist although the act will remain in force.

There has been widespread criticism for alleged abuse of Section 57, under which a number of journalists were sued and arrested.

Section 57 deals with defamation, hurting religious sentiments, causing deterioration of law and order and instigating against any person or organisation through publishing or transmitting any material on websites or in electronic form. It stipulates a maximum prison term of 14 years for the offences.

Now, the draft of Digital Security Act-2018 splits these offences into four separate sections with punishment ranging from three to 10 years' term.

The minister said, "The main target of the government is to make sure the Act is not abused. There's nothing called Section 57 in the new act. Only digital crimes have been identified. We're trying to reduce the chances of abuse."

As per the new law, police will have no authority to file cases for those crimes related to Section 57, he said. "We believe in freedom of expression. But we're living in a digital age. Now, digital crimes are more serious than other crimes. We'll have to prevent digital crimes but not at the cost of press freedom," he said.

population, ranging from 18 to 30 years, are mostly affected by the virus -- around 25 lakh.

"If one family member has this virus then others are likely to be affected by it as it is blood-related," said Dr Shahinul while presenting his keynote paper. According to World Hepatitis Alliance, out of 325 million people living with viral hepatitis globally, 290 million are not aware of it. Speaking at the seminar, liver and medicine specialist at Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujib Medical University (BSMMU)

Prof Nooruddin Ahmad said, "The virus is spread from pregnant mother to child." If pregnant women can be detected earlier with the virus and treated accordingly, the virus will not spread among children, he said, adding that government should run free tests to stop the virus at health clinics and also provide free treatment. This year, World Hepatitis Day is going to be observed on July 28. The theme of the day is "Eliminate Hepatitis" and the slogan is "Find the Missing Millions, Get Tested".
