LNG supply issues fixed

Gas likely to reach Ctg through undersea pipeline on Thursday

REJAUL KARIM BYRON and MOHAMMAD SUMAN

People of Chittagong could be using Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) this week as the authorities have finally been able to pump the imported LNG, on a ship anchored in the Bay, into the Matarbari reservoir in Moheshkhali of Cox's Bazar through an undersea pipeline.

An official of Rupantarita Praktitik Gas Company Ltd (RPGCL) said the LNG might be supplied to Chittagong on Thursday through the 91km undersea pipeline of Karnaphuli Gas Distribution Company Ltd (KGDCL) linked to the grid in Chittagong's Anwara.

The government high-ups may inaugurate this formally on that day after a delay of three months due to adverse weather and technical issues.

Nasrul Hamid, state minister for power, energy and mineral resources, told The Daily Star yesterday that the gas had already arrived at Matarbari land terminal and gas pressure was being tested. He said if everything went well, the gas would be supplied to the pipeline.

The RPGCL official said the LNG was taken to the Matarbari reservoir from the LNG tanker -- Excellence -- anchored in the Bay of Bengal through the undersea pipeline on Sunday.

The ship carrying Bangladesh's first imported consignment of 1.37 lakh cubic feet of LNG from Qatar anchored in the Bay on April 24. Since then several deadlines had expired for gas transmission to the reservoir due to technical issues.

Says IGP about people seen with police during action against protesters

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Inspector General of Police Mohammad Javed Patwary yesterday said they did not ask anyone to take part in police action during the recent student protest as the force was capable of maintaining law and order under any situation.

"We never asked anyone to join us. If needed, we will call upon the law-abiding people to join us," he said.

Speaking at a press briefing at the Police Headquarters, Javed avoided answering a question about the identities of the youths.

The briefing was organised to inform the media about the law and order on the occasion of the National

UN rights experts urge Bangladesh authorities

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

UN human rights experts yesterday urged Bangladesh to immediately release photographer Shahidul Alam, who had allegedly been tortured in custody.

"The arrest and alleged ill-treatment of Alam is extremely worrying and takes place in a general context of a crackdown against young students and others calling for better public governance, reforms and justice in Bangladesh, including media workers and other civil society," said the UN rights experts in a press statement issued in Geneva yesterday.

Also yesterday, the Supreme Court dismissed a petition filed by the government seeking stay on a High Court order that directed the authorities concerned to send the detained photographer to Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujib Medical University for treatment and medical check-up.

The satellite will be visible in Britain about four times a night as the sun reflects off its shiny surface.

It was created by US artist, Trevor Paglen, whose work seeks to highlight mass surveillance and data protection.

He wants people to consider their place in the universe when looking up at the night sky.

SHIMULIA-KATHALBARI Heavy vehicles stranded for disruption in ferry service

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Munshiganj

More than 500 heavy vehicles remained stranded at the Shimulia-Kathalbari terminals as ferry service had been disrupted for the third straight day yesterday due to poor navigability in a stretch of the Padma.

While normally, 21 ferries operate through the Shimulia-Kathalbari river-route, only eight small ferries -- Ketoki, Kakoli, Kasturi, Kapoti, Kishori, Dhaka, Comilla and Faridpur -- were being used to carry small and light vehicles.

The ferries were moving through a naturally formed channel marked by Bangladesh Inland Water Transport Authority (BIWTA) beside the main Louhajang channel.

The Louhajang channel and its alternative channel were being dredged continuously, using seven
