WB approves $25m

psycho-social activities to help Rohingya children recover from shocks and prevent exploitation. The grant will especially focus on girl children, who are often victims of gender-based violence."

The WB statement said the existing "Reaching out of School Children Project II" (ROSC II) is also being extended for two years, which will enable the enrolment of underprivileged children from the host communities in Cox's Bazar, which has the lowest net education enrolment rate in the country.

The project extension will help provide training to more than 17,000 local adolescents and help them with job placement.

The financing, part of up to $480 million announced by the World Bank in June, will help establish 1,000 new learning centres and support about 500 existing learning centres in the camp areas. In addition, about 2,000 teachers and instructors will be recruited and trained at about 100 teachers' training facilities, the WB said.

Adolescent girls at camps face risks of abuse, abduction, and early marriage. More than half of the teachers will be women, who will be trained to help the girl children and adolescents to manage safety concerns and if needed, guide them to safe locations. Furthermore, the financing will help raise awareness among Rohingya children about their rights, gender violence, and personal safety.

"While the financing will address the immediate education needs of the Rohingya children and adolescents, it will also help strengthen the government's service delivery system in Cox's Bazar," said Syed Rashed Al Zayed, World Bank team leader for the project.

"All learning activities, including preparation of textbooks and learning materials will adhere to the government's 'Learning Competency Framework' that would define informal education for the Rohingya children."

Through an innovative World Bank financing instrument for refugees and host communities, for every dollar contributed by Canada, five additional grant dollars will be unlocked for a total of $25 million in the new financing, the WB said.

Since 2013, ROSC II has enabled more than 750,000 children, who had dropped out from school, to complete their primary education.

RMG workers block road for due wages

OUR CORRESPONDENT, N'ganj

Demanding arrears and other benefits, workers of a garment factory in Narayanganj blocked Shimrai-Adamjee-Narayanganj road for around two hours yesterday.

Several hundred workers of "Swad Fashion" blocked the road in front of the main entrance of Adamjee Export Processing Zone around 9:00am, creating tailbacks on both sides.

They cleared the road upon police assurance that their demands would be met.

The workers said when they came to work, they found the factory closed and started the agitation.

Around 2,000 workers work at the factory in Shiddhirganj. The owners decided to close the factory without paying their due wages of two months or any prior notice, they added.

No factory official was available for comment.

Inspector Nazrul Islam of Shiddhirganj Police Station said owners assured that the workers would be paid their dues by October 22.

Traffic movement became normal around 11:00am.
