

The wedding plan

Weddings today are hardly simple affairs of the simpler olden days. There is practically no escaping the 'bigger is better' trend, be it for personal gratification or social norms and pressure.

Instagram streams and Pinterest boards for even the smallest things exist with ideas abounding from the minimalist to the grand. Planning a wedding has consequently become even more critical than it used to be.

While the modern bride and groom take it upon themselves to see to every little detail and do everything by themselves, the tolling of the wedding bells echo within pretty much everyone around them.

From the respective parents to the guests attending, with so much happening in such a small time frame, it can get confusing real quick for anyone involved. But fear not as calm thinking and planning ahead is the key to making it all work. Whether you are a multi-tasking bride or groom, or an in-law in charge of all wedding festivities in the coming months, check out our all-purpose wedding planner for a walk-through, or catch a few tips to boost your special day.
