

Made of chocolate, drizzled with love!

With friends and family loving and regularly ordering Samaya's decadent creations, her mother Nabila decided it was time to start a Facebook page for her so that she can do what she loves a little more professionally. With that thought in mind, they opened 'Piece O Cake by Samaya.' It is primarily managed by her mother, who deals with the correspondence and passes on the orders to the little chef.

"Thankfully, Samaya's teachers are co-operative and encouraging. I believe grades should not be the only important thing in a child's life, as these extracurricular activities will build them up. I have told Samaya that as long as she can manage good grades in school, she can keep on baking. This has also lead Samaya to be very good at time management. In fact, during her half-yearly exams, she had double the orders, but she managed just fine," expressed a proud Nabila.

I believe grades should not be the only important thing in a child's life, as these extra-curricular activities will build them up.

Every Friday, Saturday and during holidays, Samaya and her nanu go to baking classes where they thoroughly enjoy learning new techniques and recipes together. As much as she loves baking, breaking eggs is not her forte, grumbles Samaya, "Breaking eggs is the only part that stresses me out and I don't enjoy doing it. Otherwise, I love decorating my cakes and coming up with new ideas on how to decorate." So passionate is she about baking that she spends most of her free time watching baking videos on YouTube and television shows.

From chocolate chip cookies to fruit and lemon tarts, and from dark chocolate ganache cakes to peach and custard trifles, she makes her desserts from scratch with the finest ingredients and they are totally worth those extra calories!

A rare display of talent and dedication from an 11-year-old is commendable beyond measure. So the next time you want to binge on some cupcakes and home-made cookies, or order a cake for a party, drop her a line on Facebook, and see her unveil magic with her two little hands!
