Shortage of public transport hurts city commuters

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

As Dhaka Metropolitan Police (DMP) yesterday restricted vehicular movement at some points of Dhaka city for Awami League's election victory celebration rally at Suhrawardi Udyan, commuters of the city had to face sufferings due to shortage of public transport.

Though intensity of the suffering was lesser than other times, many commuters -- especially patients of some public and private hospitals -- had to walk several kilometres to reach their destination.

Fearing serious traffic congestion, and also as it was the weekend, number of both public and private transport was very low, for which many commuters were seen standing at different points to get their transport.

"I went to the Infectious Diseases Hospital in Mohakhali for treatment of my granddaughter Shayla, but we had to walk around two hours to reach Matshya Bhaban after the treatment," said Munni Akhtar.

"We did not have enough money to hire a rickshaw, as rickshaw-pullers were asking Tk 200 to 250 to reach Gulsitan. We will take a bus or human haulier from Gulistan to go to Kamrangirchar," said Munni at around 3pm near Kakrail mosque.

Commuters also had to spend hours on Gulistan-Jatrabari flyover due to traffic congestion, as supporters of Awami League and its front organisations joined the rally with colourful processions, blocking roads.

"I left Chashara, Narayanganj to reach Dhaka Medical College Hospital (DMCH) around 3pm and reached at around 5:10pm; the journey normally takes around one hour," said Ehsanul Hasan Sohel, driver of an ambulance, who brought a woman in labour to the hospital.

Many patients of DMCH had to face similar ordeal, as processions crossed the DMCH emergency gate blocking the gate for a brief time, he said.

It was a blend of festivity and distress yesterday as Awami League celebrated their election victory at Suhrawardi Udyan while people had to suffer on Dhaka roads due to restricted vehicular movement. Clockwise from top left, a procession heads towards the venue, blocking one side of VIP Road. ELECTRICITY-POWERED VEHICLES Regulations likely to see further delay

TUHIN SHUBHRA ADHIKARY

The government's move to bring electrically-powered vehicles like three-wheeler easy-bikes and electric cars under regulation is likely to be delayed further, as the ministry concerned decided to take Indian practices into account before taking final decision.

As per the latest decision of the road transport and bridges ministry, a four-member team consisting of officials from Road Transport and Highway Division (RTHD) and Bangladesh Road Transport Authority (BRTA) will visit India to observe firsthand about registration process and operation of electricity-run vehicles, officials said.

BRTA has been asked to give a "self-sufficient" proposal after the visit by the end of this month, they said. But, it may not happen as per the schedule, as the date for India visit of the team has not been fixed yet, BRTA officials added.

"We will go to India for spot visit and will try to know registration process of electricity-run vehicles there," BRTA spokesperson Mahbub-E-Rabbani and a member of the team, told The Daily Star on Thursday.

With the number of electricity-run vehicles increasing gradually in the country, the government has decided to bring those under regulation and BRTA, upon preparing a draft guidelines in this regard, sent it to the ministry for approval in November last year.

As per the draft, each electric vehicle has to obtain registration, fitness certificate and route permit like those required for fuel-run

1969 mass upsurge hero Asad to be recalled today

CITY DESK

Shaheed Asad Day will be observed today, commemorating the supreme sacrifice of student leader Asad during the mass upsurge of 1969.

The nation will recall Asad's sacrifice with deep gratitude through various programmes, marking his 50th martyrdom anniversary.

On this day in 1969, Asaduzzaman was killed when Pakistani forces opened fire near Dhaka Medical College Hospital during a protest against repression on the then East Pakistan [now Bangladesh] people.

Then a graduate student of history at Dhaka University, Asad was also the DU unit president and Dhaka city unit general secretary of erstwhile East Pakistan Chhatra Union.

Then President Ayub Khan was forced to step down amid a mass revolt fuelled by the incident.

Different socio-political organisations, including Shaheed Asad Parishad, have chalked out elaborate programmes that include placing wreaths at the memorial plaque of Asad in front of the DMCH and his grave at Shibpur in Narsingdi.

President Abdul Hamid and Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina issued separate messages paying homage to the memory of Asad, reports BSS.

They also prayed for the eternal peace of Asad's departed soul.

For the last two days, these tangled wires belonging to different utility service providers have been lying on the road beside Birdem hospital on Kazi Nazrul Islam Avenue, obstructing vehicles and passers-by.

AL celebrating victory to hide moral defeat: Fakhrul

UNB, Dhaka

BNP yesterday alleged that the ruling party is celebrating its victory to divert people's attention from "vote rigging" in the December 30 election.

"They [AL] are celebrating the victory to hide the moral defeat they suffered in the election as well as to divert people's attention to a different direction," said BNP Secretary General Mirza Fakhrul Islam Alamgir.

Fakhrul made the remarks while talking to reporters after placing a wreath at their party founder Ziaur Rahman's grave in the city, marking his 83rd birth anniversary.

"Awami League suffered a serious defeat on December 30, as they've become isolated from people," he said.

Fakhrul alleged that Awami League has little respect for democracy, although they often talk about it.

He also said Awami League had established one-party rule "Baksal" in 1975 banning all political parties and snatching people's freedom of expression, as the party does not believe in democracy.

"On the birthday of the party founding president, we're vowing afresh to free democracy and our chairperson Khaleda Zia from jail and bring back home our acting chairman Tarique Rahman and re-establish democracy," he said.

NO RIFT IN OIKYAFRONT Although different media are running stories on "conflicts" among Oikyafont leaders, there is no rift in their alliance, claimed the senior BNP leader.

ATROCITIES AGAINST ROHINGYA Drum up int'l support for trial: speakers

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Despite complications in international laws, the genocide on Myanmar's Rohingya people could be tried in light of customary international laws, and Bangladesh government should accelerate its efforts for international support, speakers at a symposium said yesterday.

Bangladesh Institute of Law and International Affairs (Bilia) organised the events at its office in the capital.

Presided over by Prof Rahmat Ullah, dean of the faculty of law at Dhaka University (DU), Muhammad Mustafa Hossain, assistant professor of Brac University and Quazi Omar Foyzal, an independent researcher, presented two keynote papers in the programme.

Researchers and experts from different government and non-government organisations, and students and teachers from different universities participated in the symposium.

Barrister Tapas Kanti Baul, prosecutor of International Crimes Tribunal, said, "The United Nations has termed it persecution, not genocide, in their 442 page report... That is a big restriction of the application of genocide convention."

However, all four elements of crimes which are enough to term the atrocities as "genocide" have been committed, he added.

Myanmar has put reservations to Articles VI and VII of "The convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide", which has also created some complexities, Barrister Tapas said.
