

Johnny Depp finally in the clear

Johnny Depp has recently emerged with new clear-and-cut evidence that will put Amber Heard's charges of domestic abuse against him to rest, once and for all. He will further use his evidence in a libel case against The Sun as well, since the outlet published an article calling Depp a 'wife-beater'. The article also brought major backlash for J.K. Rowling for allowing the star actor to continue his role in Fantastic Beasts, despite the allegations. His attorney released a statement about his innocence. The supposed evidence includes a series of security tapes, followed by eyewitness statements and newly discovered affidavits and deposition transcripts dating back to 2016, and text messages with The Sun.

Demi Lovato shows support to Bebe Rexha

Demi Lovato showed her support for Bebe Rexha, after the latter faced public criticism from designers who refused to dress her for the Grammy Awards, as she wears a size 8. Demi has been very open about body image issues and thus, greatly praised Bebe for speaking out and using her platform to bring awareness to body-shaming. Bebe Rexha was understandably frustrated and finally expressed her feelings in a video she posted on Instagram. She said, "So, I finally got nominated at the GRAMMY's and it is like the coolest thing ever. And a lot of times artists go and talk to designers, and they would make them custom dresses to walk the red carpet in. So I had my team hit out many designers, and a lot of them don't want to dress me because I am too big." She also mentioned that she would not wear any dress made by designers who body-shame women and call a size 6 or an 8 unattractive.
