

THE LIFESTYLE PARENTHESIS

DHAKA SUNDAY FEBRUARY 24, 2019, FALGUN 12, 1425 BS 36

To a future with glam!

Ditch heavy foundation, and pick a luminising CC cream that covers blemishes. Swipe on a purple-pink highlighter with a silvery sheen that will bring a lunar glow to your cheekbones, but don't just stop there!

Take it to your forehead, bridge of nose and inner corners of nose and eyes. You will see the future through your eyes, so start with them. Brows will be bolder, but groomed, minus any arch. They will also be darker, perhaps with a dash of colour on them.

Neon stands out, as does pastel! The fashionistas of the future will not be afraid to make a statement with a serious edge, and will choose eyeliner as the weapon of choice. There will be major playing with shape and colour.

A straight sharp line, a thick, graphic swipe or a block of colour running across the eye with winged ends will possibly be the order of the day. Optic white, space silver, periwinkle or electric blue will look cyber-chic. Transcendence of the space and outer galaxy will be channelled in makeup by using sparkling eye shadows reminiscent of moon dust, and used in place of traditional coloured ones. And its use will not just be limited to the eyes, but face, hair and body will get generous doses of it. Another exciting addition could be the use of metallic tattoos on the face, evoking an alien-like feel.

If you are going to the future, your lips better be ready to take on any challenge!

A deep berry shade that has a hint of sparkle in it is probably going to look great, but the application may not be so precise. A smudge of glitter on bare lips with a bare face is wonderfully otherworldly. Makeup may lose its definitive quality; there will perhaps be more freedom in terms of expression, in that there will be no more rules.

Cheekbones may be highly contoured or just left bare, simply with a spot of colour on one side.

Traditional blush shades of pink and peach will be ditched altogether; fake flush will simply not cut it for the future fashionista. Instead, she will choose sparkle and shimmer to highlight her extraterrestrial leanings!

The reality is we are progressing into a time of no rules, and no boundaries. Exciting times await us where all will be accepted and no judgment allowed in any aspect of life. So why should there be boundaries in a space as inherently creative as makeup? It's time to look outside our own galaxy and explore, stimulate and ultimately, embrace the boundless nature of universe into the future!
