

HC questions Rajuk's

Advocate Purnindu filed the petition as public interest litigation yesterday, following a report published on the daily Samakal on March 3 under the headline "84 plots allocated secretly".

The report said Rajuk has created around 100 new plots by changing the layout plan, and ignoring the SC directive. The plots, on 10 bighas of land, have already been allocated secretly to customers, according to the report.

During hearing of the petition, Purnindu told the HC that as per the SC directive, Rajuk cannot change the layout plan and create any new plot at Purbachal New Town Project.

Rajuk has to take the SC's permission to change the layout plan and create any new plot there, he said.

Deputy Attorney General Abdullah Al Mahmud Bashar opposed the petition, saying Rajuk has neither created any new plot nor changed the layout plan in Purbachal.

Some of the plots might have been classified, he argued. Secretaries to the ministries of housing and public works, land and environment and forests, SC registrar general, Rajuk chairman and editor and reporter concerned of the Samakal have been made respondents to the rule, Advocate Purnindu told The Daily Star.

Diplomatic sources said the team's main focus is to establish crimes committed against Rohingyas in Myanmar and their deportation to Bangladesh as well as potentially other crimes under article 7 of the Rome Statute.

The Hague-based ICC has already brought the Rohingya issue under its jurisdiction and set up a court for trial of the perpetrators. The visit is taking place to have the preliminary examination aimed at establishing the case.

The ICC team will also meet government high-ups and authorities concerned, while the government has assured of giving all possible support during its visit.

On September 18 last year, Bensouda said she had begun an inquiry to establish whether there was enough evidence to merit a full investigation.
