

THEY'LL PROBABLY DO A BETTER JOB THAN YOU

When I took the decision to major in the arts, many people asked me, "Why bother?" They wanted to know how I would put food on the table and warned me of the job insecurity. And often times, some enlightened individual would tell me, "Arts are for girls."

Gender stereotypes run rampant through most things in our society and it's honestly no surprise that the statement rings true even when it comes to education. Women who study in STEM fields are constantly being asked to prove themselves. Compared to the young women who want to study the sciences, I've had a pretty easy ride simply because I'm a guy. I can only imagine how infuriating it must be for girls studying STEM to constantly fend off doubt that originates from medieval logic. This week's cover story deals with these constant traps that women in STEM fields find themselves in.

- Talat Ahmed, Sub-editor, SHOUT

APP REVIEW

Be careful, it bites!

ARAF MOMEN AKA

Platform: iOS, Android

Puzzle games and mind benders are fun and all in a methodical manner, but there are moments when we merely want pure fun. That is what Hungry Shark World gives you.

Made by Ubisoft, this mobile game allows you to be a shark with a bottomless pit of a stomach. You eat everything in sight to keep your shark alive and you level up your shark or buy new sharks to be able to eat and challenge more of the beings around you in the shark infested waters of four maps. One of the maps stays unlocked at start and the other three you have to unlock by unlocking X number of sharks, or by simply buying them.

Staying online allows you to compete with other players of the game in terms of distance travelled, things you have eaten, including enemy sharks, etc.

The maps are actually quite elaborate. You'll need an adequately powerful smartphone to play this. But once you explore the maps, you might only open this just to kill time rather than staying invested in it. Overall, it is a fun little game to play when you have to wait in line, or when you are stuck in traffic.

MIXTAPE

VENUS

MARINA & THE DIAMONDS
 Can't Pin Me Down

KESHA Woman

ARETHA FRANKLIN RESPECT

DESTINY'S CHILD Survivor

DEMI LOVATO

Reach out to us at

shoutds@gmail.com

THIS WEEK'S HORRORSCOPE

ARIES

That thing you did that's been keeping you up all night? Definitely your fault.

TAURUS

Fuchka is a no-no.

GEMINI

You must embrace a brand new chapter in your life. But you don't read chapter books, do you?

CANCER

You can live your whole life without love. The stars say you should start getting used to that.

LEO

Water is not your friend.

VIRGO

Don't drop that thun-thun-thun.

LIBRA

Everyone is lying to you. Don't believe them.

SCORPIO

Pay your rickshaw driver an extra 5 taka. It will come back.

SAGITTARIUS

Make sure you don't let your phone's battery go below 87%.

CAPRICORN

Someone will give you 5 taka. Treat yourself.

AQUARIUS

Maroon is not a good look.

PISCES

Researchers recommend you stop looking at screens. Now, what would that accomplish?

