Keeping up with NOBLE

For many years, Adil Hossain Noble has ruled the world of modelling. He has appeared on numerous television commercials and he occasionally acts in television projects as well. He opens up about his recent projects in a candid conversation with The Daily Star.

SHAH ALAM SHAZU

Are you working on any television projects for Pohela Boishakh this year? Yes, I will start shooting for a tele-fiction, especially for Pohela Boishakh, from next week. I really like the character that I will be playing in it, and we will be shooting in Dhaka. Do you enjoy working on television specials for occasions like Pohela Boishakh? Many television projects come up during holidays like Eid and Pohela Boishakh. I am quite selective about the kind of shows that I act in, and I actually prefer working on television projects during these special occasions. Tell us a little about some of your other upcoming projects.

I have just wrapped up a sunflower oil television commercial with Sadia Islam Mou, which I am really excited about. The two of us will be working on another television commercial soon. We do not get to see you in tele-fictions as often as we would like to. Do you miss being in front of the camera? I give the full credit of my success as an artiste to the Almighty and to my fans. Viewers have showered me with their love and support over the years. The other day, as I was returning to Dhaka from abroad, I came across some people who were kind enough to tell me that they like my work. I felt very happy and humbled seeing their love. I know my fans would like to see me on television more regularly and I miss acting.

AVENGERS ENDGAME new trailer out

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT DESK

The number one trending YouTube video as of yesterday, the new trailer for Avengers: Endgame, is racking up views with great momentum since its release.

The deadly rage of Thanos may have eradicated a great chunk of the universe in Avengers: Infinity War, but the fight is far from over. The trailer gives a glimpse of some of the remaining superheroes including Iron Man, Captain America, Thor as they remember their own stories of origin, in the form of flashbacks. Hope seems to be prevailing as they all unite to defeat Thanos. In addition to all the hype, the clip also reveals Captain Marvel at the end, hinting that she might as well be the saving grace, in this much anticipated installment. Avengers: Endgame hits theatres on April 26.

Three of novelist Nasrin Jabin's (second from right) books were unveiled on March 15. The chief guest of the event, held at Bangla Academy's Shamsur Rahman Hall, was National Professor Anisuzzaman (M). Also present were renowned writer Selina Hossain, Bangla Academy DG Habibullah Shiraji (second from left), elocutionist Rupa Chakraborty (R) and the publisher, Monirul Haque (L).

Deepika Padukone unveils her Statue of Purpose at London's Madame Tussauds

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT DESK

Actor and global icon Deepika Padukone recently unveiled her wax statue at London's Madame Tussauds. However, Deepika's statue is a little different than other celebrity wax figures at the museum, as it stands for a cause close to Deepika's heart.

Called the Statue of Purpose, the figurine is a lifelike image of the actor dressed head-to-toe in magnificent white. Deepika asserted that she wants the statue to remind her fans of someone who did something for the cause of mental health, who worked towards creating awareness and destigmatising mental illness. She believes that the statue will give people a sense of hope.
