

KENDALL'S new beau?

Kendall Jenner has recently been spotted with pro basketball player, Ben Simmons, at a basketball game. The two have been spending quite a lot of time together, and even went partying along with some friends recently. Kendall and Ben had previously been linked as a couple last year, when the latter had broken up with his then girlfriend, Tinashe Kachingwe. However, by the end of the year, the two seemed to have lost connection, until now. Kendall had previously been in quite a few relationships, including those with Blake Griffin and Anwar Hadid. Regarding this, a source said, "Kendall is so busy and has so much going on and doesn't want to wait around for anyone. She knows there's always a hot new fling waiting around the corner for her." However, it seems that fans have to be content with only the speculations, as neither Kendall nor Ben has yet spoken up about any romance between them.

The stars have been candidly captured while sharing numerous lunch and dinner dates, and finally at the end of last year, Tiger admitted that there is "more than friendship" between them. Now, Tiger's father, actor Jackie Shroff has unveiled details about the rumoured romance. He said, "Tiger found his first friend, who is a girl, at 25.....
