The show must go on!

SADI MOHAMMAD SHAHNEWAZ

At a Pohela Boishakh programme held at a restaurant in the capital, LRB resurfaced as 'Balam and the Legacy' to put on a performance in tribute to the late great Ayub Bachchu. The band had earlier announced on April 5 that Balam would take the mantle of LRB lead vocalist and guitarist, after AB tragically passed away last October. However, disputes with Ayub Bachchu's family and LRB members over the continuation of the band put up questions about the continuation of LRB and its legacy.

Ahnaf Tazwar Ayub, the legend's son, cleared the air in an emotional facebook status yesterday.

"I'm letting the remaining members of LRB (or Balam and the Legacy as they're calling themselves now) know that they're free to perform as LRB as they chose to initially," writes Ahnaf. "I wish them the very best and hope they achieve great success and keep Sollo's music alive. I wish LRB all the success they can achieve." Ahnaf also clarified that even though the band would never be the same without AB, he is a national treasure, and his music and legacy should continue by any means possible.

The band members had earlier said that the name was changed from LRB to 'Balam and the Legacy' so as to respect the sentiments of the family. However, the band is yet to make a comment after the recent statement made by the family. As the maestro himself used to say, "the show must go on!", fans will certainly hope for the music to play on in memory of the great Ayub Bachchu.

DCI and RSC organises press conference on children rights and sight

FARJANA AHMED ANNAN

The Distressed Children and Infants International (DCI) and Rights and Sight for Children (RSC) organised a press conference on Children Rights and Sight, in collaboration with Hotel Tropical Daisy, at the hotel premises yesterday. DCI is a US based non-profit organisation headquartered at Cheshire, Connecticut and aims to protect children by focusing on their health, education, family rights, sound psychological growth and other basic opportunities. Protecting children's eyesight and creating awareness about different ophthalmological diseases are also among DCI's top objectives. Children who are raised abroad, and are from financially solvent families, are encouraged to sponsor underprivileged children residing in Bangladesh and maintain friendship by writing letters or through social media. This programme is part of the initiative 'Children Helping Children'. RSC Chairperson Dr Abdul Mazid and Dr Ehsan Hoque, the Founder and Executive Director of DCI addressed members of the press at the conference, where the latter mentioned, "I used to be bullied because of my poor eyesight when I was young. I understand the psychological distress a child goes through while dealing with such issues in their childhood and adolescence." He further added, "I have always focused on counseling pregnant women on the importance of maintaining a healthy lifestyle for the sound development of their children. I am pleased to say that this organisation shares the same motives as I do, to promote ways of improving children's health."

The press conference ended with an announcement of the upcoming annual awareness concert titled 'Journey for Child Rights and Sight', on April 19 at Krishibid Institution Bangladesh (KIB) auditorium. DCI Goodwill Ambassador Sabina Yasmin, DCI Advocate Hassan Abidur Reza Jewel, Benuka Institution of Fine Arts, and other renowned Bangladeshi performers will partake in the concert. Renowned actor and DCI Goodwill Ambassador Babita Akhter will welcome the guests via a video message.
