Phoebe Waller-Bridge's wit in 'Bond 25'

According to a British tabloid, 007 himself made a special request to the British Academy Television Award winning actor to "enliven" the script of his alleged last Bond venture Bond 25. Apparently, the onscreen Mi6 agent is a fan of Waller-Bridge's work. The upcoming Bond flick is officially being written by Scott Z. Burns, Neal Purvis, and Robert Wade - Purvis and Wade had written some of the previous installments of the long running Mi6 thriller. According to The Guardian, "sources close to the film in the US said that while in the country she discussed with Craig how to improve the script of Bond 25, which the 007 actor felt needed some "polishing", by introducing more humour and the offbeat style of writing she is best known for." On acting front, Waller-Bridge was last heard playing the witty android Solo, in Solo: A Star Wars Story.

DEPP in Deep Trouble

The Golden Globe Award winning actor, Johnny Depp has been on the news for his divorce with actor, Amber Heard for more than a year now. His battle against the lawsuit and proving his innocence against the alleged accusation of domestic violence have not only raised questions on his reputation as a person but also as an actor. After the recent enlightenment on the Depp-Heard divorce case, Warner Bros. are reconsidering their choice on casting Depp in Fantastic Beasts 3, the next instalment of JK Rowling's Harry Potter spin-off series. A source said, "Executives at Warner Bros. are wondering how to deal with the backlash of the Depp matter on the Harry Potter franchise and high-level female execs at the studio are extremely worried about working with Depp and the message it sends to the public." Previously Fantastic Beasts: The Crimes of Grindelwald starring Depp was released in November 2018. This divorce case has been an emotional turmoil for Depp and his fans, but we really hope it all ends well and they move on with their lives.

Ajay Devgn faces Tanushree's wrath

Actor Tanushree Dutta, an important figure in Bollywood's #MeToo movement, recently issued a statement where she slammed Ajay Devgn, for keeping Alok Nath in his new movie, De De Pyaar De, despite the several allegations of sexual misconduct that have emerged against the actor over the last few months. In her statement, Dutta wrote, "Tinsel town is full of liars, show-offs and spineless hypocrites. And it seems by a large public consensus that the signpost is pointing currently at Ajay Devgn." According to the former Femina Miss India Universe, Alok Nath's scenes could have been shot again to replace him in the movie. Ever since the release of the movie's trailer, Devgn and his team have faced a lot of backlash on social media for casting Alok Nath. Allegations of sexual harassment against Nath started surfacing in late 2018, with writer Vinta Nanda accusing Nath of rape and sexual harassment in October 2018. Later, Nath's former co-actors Sandhya Mridul, Himani Shivpuri and Deepika Amin also came forward with their narratives on how they have been sexually harassed by the senior Bollywood actor.
