

The Curious Case of Salman-Katrina's "friendship"

Friends. Lovers. Colleagues. Salman-Katrina's relationship can be defined by many adjectives. The Bollywood alpha male Salman Khan and IIFA Award winning actor Katrina Kaif have, over the years, walked down a rocky road full of ups and downs. The two started dating in mid-2000s and called it quits in 2009, after rumors of Kaif's relationship with Kapoor Jr. started doing the rounds in the media. Post breakup with Ranbir in 2016, Katrina was back to being friends with Khan. Since then Kat has shared the screen with the Tiger in three movies, Tiger Zinda Hai, Zero and the upcoming flick Bharat. In a recent interview, Kat revealed that her friendship with Salman had nothing to do with her signing Bharat; while she admitted that she is friends with Salman, she stressed that she had signed the film because she liked its script. She even went on to say that her former beau did not call her after she had signed the film, but that they met directly on the sets. It looks like, Salman and Katrina share an interesting bond and we can only speculate as to the true nature of their 'friendship'. Bharat is slated to be released during Eid.

KIT-CLARKE'S Chemistry

Game of Thrones actor, Kit Harrington was blown away when he first met his co-star Emilia Clarke aka Daenerys Targaryen, the Mother of Dragons. In an interview, the star was looking back on his journey so far with the cast, where he talked about his first meeting with Emilia. He said, "She takes your breath away when she walks into a room, Emilia." The actors have been best friends for over seven years now, but their characters do not unite until Season

7 of GOT. So, fans have been eagerly waiting to see the chemistry spark between the fire and the ice. Kit Harrington is married to former Game of Thrones actor Rose Leslie, who is also close friends with Clarke. He admitted their friendship made it "really odd" for him to kiss Clarke on screen. Later, he also joked, "She's wonderful and I love Emilia and I've loved working with her. And it's not hard to kiss her, is it?"

Jolie's U-turn

Hollywood beauty, Angelina Jolie is rumoured to be interested in a romantic reconciliation with estranged husband Brad Pitt. The actor is apparently having second thoughts about her divorce with Pitt which is why she is complicating the divorce battle. According to recent reports, an unnamed source disclosed, "Angelina has made it clear to Brad that she wants to be back in a relationship with him. She would like them to be a family again and doesn't seem capable of moving on. That's why she is making it so difficult for Brad with every detail of their divorce." Brad Pitt has reportedly turned down the possibility of a patch-up with Jolie, but wants a "harmonious" relationship with her for the sake of their children. Jolie is apparently holed up in her house in LA, living a lonely life. The two actors tied the knot on August 23, 2014 and separated in September 2016. The two share six children.

