

CARROT FRIES

Snacking does not mean we cannot include vegetables. Cut your carrots like you would with French fries and mix in with olive oil, any shredded cheese of your choice, parsley, garlic powder, salt and pepper, arrange on baking tray and send it into the oven.

While it bakes, make a nice mixture of Greek yoghurt, garlic powder, parsley, salt and pepper, and red pepper flakes to create a sublime dipping sauce that will make you forget you are chowing down vegetables. This process can be replicated with other vegetables too, like cauliflower.

HAVE A SELECTION OF DIPS

No matter what sort of snacks you are making, a selection of dips should be ready for all bite-sized foods, savoury or sweet. Pizza sauces, cheesy dips, pickled dips and Greek hummus, the options are endless. If making a dip is too much of a hassle, there are multiple options at the grocery store that you can buy and would taste just as great.

Always go with bite-sized proportions because that makes it easy to make, and easy to enjoy without creating a mess, and serve a lot of people too.

Devour these munchies on your couch by yourself or throw a little party to enjoy with a bunch of friends as you share the joys and woes of the game. Even if your team does not win, at least you have good food to console you.

KFC and Pizza Hut bringing joy to underprivileged children

For the month of Ramadan, KFC and Pizza Hut upheld their Ramadan tradition and organised special iftars at their outlets. But this time, it was extra special because this iftar was done across all outlets of KFC and Pizza Hut on the same day.

The iftar was arranged for underprivileged children from local orphanages, madrasas and charity schools run by the locals in the vicinity of each store. This year, 500 children had iftar at 38 outlets of KFC and Pizza Hut across Bangladesh (Dhaka, Savar, Chattogram, Cox's Bazar and Sylhet).

"In the month of Ramadan, this little endeavor we take to bring smiles to these little faces gives us much joy. We try to give these children an experience that they would not have otherwise. We look forward to carrying this tradition into the future and help spread a little joy here and there," said Amit Dev Thapa, CEO of Transcom Foods (franchisee of KFC and Pizza Hut in Bangladesh).
