This past week at Star Weekend has been one of fun retrospection. As we sat planning for this special travel issue, anecdotes flew around the cubicles and over email threads: flashbacks of musical and historical festivals, of cathartic nature excursions, of food devoured on the go and throwbacks to Nanirbari days in the village, along with some reflection on the politics of travelling itself. Some of these stories we bring to you in longer pieces; we hope you can savour reading them as much as we did writing and editing them for you. But some other funny, breath-taking, and sometimes bizarre bite-sized anecdotes also managed to sneak into the bottom corners of this issue's pages. With the latter, we've left you a little surprise—read, scan, and plan your next trip as you join us on our flight down memory lane.

Eid Mubarak from the Star Weekend team!

WE WANT YOUR TRAVEL STORIES!

Send us a postcard of your travels home and abroad—a photo, the goofier the better, or a bite-sized write-up of your memories of wild journeys and the not-so-wild ones. Address them to starweekendtds@gmail.com.
