

CRICKET

I don't usually care for cricket. My understanding of the game is limited to a surface level understanding of the rules and a Hasan Minhaj bit about the BCCI. But it's World Cup season and like everyone else in the country I spend my evenings calculating required run rates because the TV would rather show me an ad for biscuits. Risking the wrath of cricket enthusiasts everywhere, I find the game rather boring and on many occasions have let my feelings on the banality of watching the first innings known. But it's World Cup season and Bangladesh are playing. It's hard not to catch the fever when a game can bring a city as chaotic as Dhaka to a standstill. Even if you're not watching the game, you'll know about boundaries and wickets. The city tells you. These days, cricket is one of the few things that bring us together.

APP REVIEW

GROW A HABIT

FAISAL BIN IQBAL

Platform: Android

Whether it is something as simple as reading a book or something that requires a bit more stamina like taking morning walks, building up a habit can be a difficult task which requires a lot of patience and dedication, and a little bit of your time each day.

"Grow - Habit Tracking" is one such app that can help you to keep track of your habits. Add a habit of your choice, select a starting and ending date for that habit and the app will provide you with daily reminders to accomplish it. Each of your habit starts off as a sapling and as you make progress, the sapling will begin to grow until you reach the scheduled end of your habit where the sapling takes the form of a full grown tree.

Grow is a minimal app with a simple and user friendly interface and its benefits can easily be harvested with a little effort from your side.
