Online cattle market lukewarm for dengue fears, floods

MUHAMMAD ZAHIDUL ISLAM

Online sales of sacrificial cows have been met with a setback this year for floods in northern parts of the country and the dengue epidemic.

"We got a bit of a shock this year," said Rezawan Ullah Khan, head of brand and category development at Bengal Meat Processing Industries, the pioneer in this field.

Last year, two weeks before Eid-ul-Azha, most of Bengal Meat's cattle were sold. But this year, only 250 cows were sold since sales opened on July 13.

Bengal Meat has targeted to sell about 800 cows this year for Eid-ul-Azha, due to be held on August 12.

In order to drive up the sales, Bengal has called all its buyers from last year but a good number of them are yet to make their decision, Khan said, adding that they will take orders for live cattle until August 8.

Accord's new conditions taking toll on apparel

Says BGMEA president

UNB, Dhaka

New fire safety related conditions being imposed by Accord are harming the apparel industry, BGMEA President Rubana Huq said yesterday.

"Accord takes many decisions without discussing with us. The new conditions are slowing down our pace," the chief of Bangladesh Garment Manufacturers and Exporters Association (BGMEA) said at the 'Workshop on fire safety issues and technical guideline' at a hotel in the capital.

She also accused Accord of violating conditions of the memorandum of understanding.

Haors need specialised bank, says CPD

STAR BUSINESS REPORT

The Centre for Policy Dialogue (CPD) has suggested setting up a specialised "Haor Bank" and adequate budgetary allocations to improve livelihoods in the wetland areas.

The government should focus on improving the quality of public services for the development of haors, according to a statement of CPD.

The observations were shared at a dialogue on "Sustainable livelihood in haor areas: the role of public service delivery" in Sunamganj yesterday.

KK KAZI & KAZI TEA

Let's live an organic lifestyle together

As part of this planet, we are born, grow and die in an organic manner. Yet the older we get, the more we drift away from nature; we indulge in synthetic, artificial foods and drinks which poison our bodies and minds.

At Kazi & Kazi Tea, we understand the need for organic farming to help you live healthier, happier lives. We not only grow the best organic tea on our single-estate garden, with soil untainted with chemicals or fertilizers, we also try to inspire an organic lifestyle for the community and the environment.

This is how we live, grow and provide Tea for Life.
