Grameenphone gets new CFO

STAR BUSINESS DESK

Grameenphone has appointed Jens Becker as its new chief financial officer (CFO), effective from August 15.

He is replacing Karl Erik Broten, the telecom company said in a statement yesterday.

Prior to the appointment, Becker had been serving as CFO of T-Mobile in Poland. He was also the CFO at T-Online International AG.

Becker has over 20 vears of experience in Deutsche Telekom Group with leadership positions in Germany and Poland and responsibility for controlling T-Online's subsidiaries in France and Spain.

"I am proud to be appointed as CFO of the largest telecom operator of the country that is providing telecommunications and digital services to over 74 million people," said Becker.

"I am thrilled for the journey ahead as the market is about to experience the fourth industrial revolution," he added.

Becker, a German national, holds a master's degree in geography coupled with economics and business administration from the Free University of Berlin.

"Jens has over a decade's experience as a Telecom CFO with a leading multinational operator and is a valuable addition to our team,' said Michael Foley, CEO of Grameenphone.

Gold subdued as investors Plastics maker await FOMC minutes

Gold prices eased on Wednesday to hover around the $1,500 level as investors turned cautious ahead of minutes from the US Federal Reserve's last meeting, which is expected to shed more light on interest rate cuts.

Spot gold was down 0.5 percent at $1,499.18 per ounce by 0948 GMT, with analysts also attributing the dip to profit-booking following the metal's recent strong run, which saw it gain more than $80 this month.

US gold futures slipped 0.4 percent to $1,509.70.

"The market is nervous while it waits for further cues on the outcome of the Fed meeting minutes" said Jigar Trivedi, a commodities analyst at Mumbai-based Anand Rathi Shares & Stock Brokers.

However, "fundamentals for gold remain positive as central bankers have increased their gold reserves amid geopolitical tension, trade spats and signals of stimulus."

Minutes from the Federal Open Market Committee's most recent meeting in July - when the US central bank cut interest rates for the first time in a decade - are due on Wednesday.

Traders are also awaiting the central bank's annual Jackson Hole seminar later this week with major focus on a scheduled speech by Fed Chair Jerome Powell.

Powell's comments are of particular interest after last week's inversion of the US yield curve widely regarded as a recession signal - boosted expectations the Fed would lower interest rates at its September policy meeting.

Lower interest rates decrease the opportunity cost of holding non-yielding bullion and weigh on the dollar, making gold cheaper for investors holding other currencies.

the consolidation phase that has taken place in the last few days," ActivTrades analyst Carlo Alberto De Casa said in a note

"Despite this, the main trend remains bullish, with further rallies that seems likely in the medium term, while in the short term the scenario is lateral, with prices that could draw a lateral range between $1,475 and $1,530."

On the trade front, US President Donald Trump said on Tuesday he had to confront China over trade even if it caused short-term harm to the US economy.

The escalation in the trade war between the world's biggest economies and an increasingly dovish shift in policy by central banks have contributed to a more than 6 percent rise in gold

Indicative of sentiment, holdings of SPDR Gold Trust, the world's largest gold-backed exchange-traded fund, rose 0.2 percent to 845.17 tonnes on Tuesday from Monday.

Among other precious metals, silver eased 0.2 percent to $17.09 per ounce, while platinum dropped 1 percent to $840.07.

Palladium edged 0.1 percent lower to $1,489.76 per ounce.

Indorama commits $1.5b to recycling

Thai chemicals company Indorama Ventures has committed $1.5 billion of investment in recycling as consumers become more aware of the environmental impact of single-use plastic and regulators push for more recycling, it said on Wednesday.

Indorama's main business is the production of PET resin, a polymer used to make plastic bottles and fibres used in products such as seat belts and tyres.

In the 12 months to June 30 the company produced nearly 5,000 kilotons of PET.

"We are investing $1 billion in recycling over the next five years," Chief Executive Aloke Lohia told Reuters on Wednesday, adding that investment would include greenfield and brownfield mergers and acquisitions focusing on bottle-to-bottle recycling.

Indorama has 11 recycling sites around the world, including plants in Thailand, Mexico and France, and aims to step up its green credentials in response to new regulation being rolled out by governments as well as changing expectations from customers.

In March the European Commission announced a target to incorporate 25 percent of recycled plastic in PET bottles by 2025, with a targeted 90 percent collection rate.

After 2023 Indorama plans to invest an additional $500 million by 2025 to help its customers to achieve the 25 percent target, Lohia added. Indian-born Lohia started Indorama in Thailand in 1994 with about 200 employees. The company has since grown to employ 18,000 people across 31 countries.

"There is infrastructure in the world to recycle PET. The problem lies in the collection," he said.

Consultancy Wood Mackenzie Chemicals estimates that the collection rate for PET beverage bottles in the European Union was about 58 percent in 2017.

About 40 percent of Indorama's revenue is from North America and about 30 percent from Europe.

Indorama, which counts Coca-Cola, PepsiCo and Nestle among its customers, said it is working with brand owners and governments to allow more bottle-to-bottle recycling.

The acquisitive company still has $2.5 billion of uncommitted capital for new projects in its other businesses, including olefin, fibres and feedstocks, Lohia said.

Defaulter Root Group to get fresh loans from Janata Leather goods exports rebound

Curiously, a BB assessment opposed the decision given the track record of Root subsidiary Gram Bangla Fertiliser and Agro

In 2011, Gram Bangla refused to pay $60,660 to an Indian bank to adjust its debt for import payments. The Indian high commission also requested Janata to take an initiative to pay back the fund, but Root

Meanwhile, Root applied to the High Court to get the default status lifted from the BB's credit information bureau

The court on April 24 asked the group to give 5 percent down payment against its outstanding loans to get a clean CIB report for four weeks. But Root failed to deposit the amount on time

It applied to the HC again and was once again instructed to deposit the amount, which it is yet to do.

Janata though bypassed the court order with only 3 percent down payment. Not only that, it concealed the HC order for 5 percent down payment in its letter to the central bank. After being informed of the matter, the central bank on July 29 asked the bank to explain why it hid the HC instruction. The bank was also asked to submit a probe report about the accusation of fund diversion by Root. On August 18, the bank admitted that the group diverted a large amount of fund violating the rules and regulations. For instance, Ranka Denim Textile Mills, a subsidiary of Root, had not settled the import liabilities of Tk 379 crore from its export earnings. Rather, it paid Tk 218 crore to adjust its sister companies' bank

Besides, it misused Tk 136 crore of the export earnings by diverting the fund, according to the letter sent to the BB.

The group, however, will provide the rest and allowed Root to reschedule its loans of the 2 percent down payment within the court order. next two months, the bank said.

"There is no scope to give NOC to Root right now as the bank admitted that it had diverted funds. Besides, the Bangladesh Financial Intelligence Unit is now investigating the matter," said the BB assessment paper.

According to the central bank's draft decision, the rescheduling facility will be annulled if the BFIU find Root's involvement in any form of money laundering.

"The central bank is yet to give any clearance to my companies to reschedule the loans," said Mohammed Razzakul Hossen Tutul, managing director of Root

He declined to give further comments. Md Abdus Salam Azad, managing director of Janata Bank, could not be reached for comment.

Md Serajul Islam, an executive director and spokesperson of the central bank, said Ibrahim Khaled, a former deputy governor the BB would take a decision as per the of the central bank.

app's Settings area," Cordwell said.

Asked whether the HC had instructed the BB to reschedule the loans by taking 5 percent down payment, he declined to give an answer.

Earlier in 2013, the central bank carried out an inspection at Ramna corporate branch of Janata Bank and found Ranka Sohel Composite Textile Mills, a subsidiary of Root, to be involved in money laundering.

The company had exported goods to a company in Turkey but none of the payment for the shipment came to Bangladesh. It later showed it had realised $6.71 lakh, but the amount actually came from Dubai and Singapore.

"Janata should not be allowed to reschedule the default loans because of its alleged involvement in financial corruption such a move will send a wrong signal to the financial sector," said Khondker

The LWG certification is awarded to companies based on the points presented on factors such as solid waste management, treatment and less usage of water, chemical use and labour welfare, explained Md Shaheen Ahmed, chairman of the Bangladesh Tanners' Association. Out of 100 points, 85 brings gold certification, 75 silver and 65 bronze, he said.

Once the Savar estate becomes fully operational, including the CETP and dumping grounds, within the next one year, at least 65 points can be gained, allowing local tanners to get better prices, he added. The absence of the certification is causing finished leather exporters to depend on a few Chinese companies not affiliated with the LWG, said Mohiuddin Ahmed Mahin, president of the Bangladesh Finished Leather, Leather Goods and Footwear Exporters Association. Hence the prices they are getting are 25 percent lower, he said, adding that the authorities assured them that the CETP would become operational by December. Ahmed was not that optimistic with July's export growth, saying that getting the real scenario requires observing at least four months. He said only 20 out of 120 manufacturers have been performing strong. Local tanners annually produce around 350 million square feet of leather, of which only 30 million square feet are consumed by local manufacturers, he said. Four million square feet of high-valued leather were imported for high-end products.

Who's tracking you? Facebook users to get more control over data

Facebook Inc said on Tuesday it was tweaking its policies to allow users to see and control the data that the social network gathers from their browsing habits on other websites and apps.

The company defines the data, for example when a clothing website shares information with Facebook on browsing activity of a user, as "Off-Facebook Activity" Facebook said in a blog post here that the

The latest action comes as the company faces severe criticism from lawmakers and regulators over its privacy practices. Last month, Facebook agreed to a record-setting $5 billion privacy settlement with the U.S. Federal Trade Commission.
