

HOOKUPS & BREAKUPS

A BONE To Pick

Ileana D'Cruz and her boyfriend, Andrew Kneebone recently unfollowed each other on Instagram, which undoubtedly got the rumour mill churning. Fans are speculating that the couple has finally split after years of dating. Ileana had previously talked about relationships, saying, "I had a different perception of what a relationship or love is like. I was all giddy-headed and fairytale about it in my head, but it's so different. There's a lot of restraint that you've got to have, compromising in certain situations -- and you've got to have a lot of respect." Even though the couple has not spoken up about the breakup, we can only assume that their differences finally led to the downfall of the relationship.

JADA-WILL'S Unconventional Marriage

Jada Pinkett Smith has always been open about her marriage, and the problems she faced in it. Jada had previously mentioned, on several occasions, that she and her husband, Will Smith, had an unconventional marriage. She also added that she would never be able to play the typical role of a wife. However, the couple has found the perfect balance, and are going strong, even after two decades into the marriage. Jada said, "Will is my life partner and I could not ask for a better one. I adore him, I never want people to think it was Will I didn't want to marry -- he and I were talking about this the other day." It seems that the couple is still madly in love, and we only wish the best for their future.

Happiness is Blooming

Orlando Bloom and Katy Perry have announced their engagement at the beginning of this year. The couple got back together in 2018, after their split a year prior. It seems that Orlando is happily engaged and hopeful about the relationship, as he claimed that both he and Katy are now older and experienced, and knew what to expect. When asked about love, Orlando said, "I think you want to grow, not fall, in love. (From now on) it should be 'growing in love.'" Orlando was previously married to Miranda Kerr for three years, while Katy was married to Russell Brand for fourteen months. Hopefully, second time's the charm for the happy couple.