

THE STARRY NIGHT

Considered as one of Van Gogh's best works, it is also one of the most recognised pieces by the artist. The picture was painted during his stay at an asylum. It is depicted by historians that he took inspiration in the painting from the view that he witnessed from his bedroom window at the shelter. The most interesting part of The Starry Night is that the moon depicted in this particular painting is actually the picture of Venus.

Researchers actually have proof for this argument, as weather reports said that Venus was indeed visible at dawn in the spring of 1889.

So much for mystery! If you like ambiguity and respect the beauty of Van Gogh's paintings, then this just might be your theme at the party.

Last but not least, to pay utmost respect to the magnificent painter; do not overdo your wardrobe. The highlight should always be in the face-paintings!

So, if you wanted suggestions — as to what to wear? My advice would be, the little black dress or a black blazer to go with something neutral in colour. There you go — you look complete!
