ROHINGYA SETTLEMENTS

8,000 acres of forests razed

Expert team of forest ministry estimates Tk 2,420cr environmental loss

ROHINGYA SETTLEMENTS

- » Bio-diversity in Cox's Bazar severely damaged
- » Houses built on 6,164 acres of reserved forests
- » 1,837 acres of forest land razed due to firewood collection
- » Elephants have stopped coming to the area

RASHIDUL HASAN

Rohingya settlements have severely damaged biodiversity and over 8,000 acres of reserved forest in Cox's Bazar.

The damage is equivalent to a loss of over Tk 2,420 crore, said a report of the Environment, Forest and Climate Change Ministry.

The report, containing data updated on October 7, caused grave concern among members of the parliamentary standing committee on environment.

The committee will hold a meeting with local administration officials in Cox's Bazar today to make recommendations on how to tackle the crisis.

Members of the parliamentary watchdog led by its chief and Awami League MP Saber Hossain Chowdhury visited different affected forests in Kutupalong area of Ukhiya Upazila yesterday.

In today's meeting, environment

Cylinder blast in ambulance kills three of a family

ARUN BIKASH DEY, Chattogram

Three of a family died and three others were injured on their way home from hospital as the CNG cylinder of an ambulance exploded in Chattogram's Anwara upazila yesterday.

The deceased were identified as Mafij Uddin, 65, his daughter-in-laws Bubul Akter, 33, and Jainab Begum, 38, said Dulal Mahmud, officer-in-charge of Anwara Police Station.

Mafij and Jainab died on the spot while Bubul succumbed to her injuries while being treated at Chattogram Medical College Hospital (CMCH), he said.

Mafij's two sons -- Shahabuddin and Ziauddin -- and helper of the ambulance Md Munna were injured in the incident, the OC said, adding that the driver was

Tension after border firing

STAFF CORRESPONDENT, Rajshahi

Tension flared up along the Charghat frontier in Rajshahi yesterday morning when the Border Guard Bangladesh tried to thwart hilsa catching by Indian fishermen inside the Bangladeshi side of the Padma.

The Bangladeshi border guards said they fired three shots in the air, but the BSF said one of its jawan was killed and another injured when Indian troops came to rescue an Indian fisherman caught by the BGB.

Later in the afternoon, the BGB and the BSF held a flag meeting where both sides agreed to launch separate investigations into the incident.

BGB Rajshahi Battalion-1 Director Lt Col Ferdous Mahmud headed the BGB side while BSF commandant KS Mehta led the Indian team in the hour-long meeting held in Charghat.

Speaking at a press conference last night, Lt Col Ferdous said after the Indian fisherman was caught along current nets, four BSF members entered around 650 yards inside Bangladesh territory. One of the BSF members was in uniform while

HC stays payment of GP audit claim

Govt to appeal; ministry 'okays' appointment of administrators for GP, Robi

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

A High Court yesterday issued a two-month injunction on the BTRC's move to realise money it says Grameenphone, the country's largest carrier, owes the government.

The order came as a blow to the telecom regulator which was all set to appoint administrators at Grameenphone and Robi to run them and realise Tk 13,447 crore it claimed the carriers owed the government in "taxes, revenue shares, and late fees".

The High Court bench of Justice AKM Abdul Hakim and Justice Fatima Nazib yesterday issued the injunction against the Bangladesh Telecommunication Regulatory Commission's move to realise nearly Tk 12,580 crore from Grameenphone.

Grameenphone has claimed that the amount demanded by the BTRC was disputed.

The HC bench fixed November 5 for hearing Grameenphone's appeal regarding the money it owes the government.

"Everyone has the right to go to the court and the government has also anticipated this. We have taken preparations to face the legal battle," Posts and Telecommunication Minister Mustafa Jabbar told The Daily Star yesterday.

Jabbar went on to say that the government would now take the help of

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

Tormented until proved innocent after 17 years

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Natore

An innocent man was yesterday cleared of the charges wrongly laid against him in yet another case of mistaken identity 17 years ago.

Additional District and Sessions Judge Mohammad Saifur Rahman Siddiki ordered the release of Bablu Sheikh in a packed Natore Court yesterday, terming the incident a clear case of mistaken identity like 'Jaha Alam' and 'Joj Mia'.

The judge also ordered the authorities concerned to take quick steps and arrest the real accused in the case -- Sree Babu.

Bablu, a 55-year-old day labourer from Ancholkot village in the district's Singra upazila, had been fighting a legal battle ever since he was arrested on November 7, 2002, in a case filed against six people, including one Sree Babu, for their involvement in a fight at Gangoli village.

Police, however, arrested Bablu instead of Sree Babu. According to the case filed on April 18, 2001, Bablu was behind bars for six days before getting bail.

3 policemen suspended for carrying hilsa

STAR REPORT

Three policemen were suspended for carrying brood hilsa in Shariatpur yesterday, while 161 fishermen were jailed or fined for catching hilsa across the country, defying a government ban.

The government has imposed a 22-day ban, starting on October 9, on catching, selling and transporting of hilsa to ensure safe spawning of the fish during its peak breeding period.

The suspended are Montu Hossain, assistant town sub-inspector, Sonjib Samaddar and Md Hridoy, constables of Shariatpur Police Lines.

The three were carrying around 200 pieces of brood hilsa on two motorbikes

New Brexit deal reached

Agreement set to get EU nod but may fall flat again in UK parliament

AFP, Brussels

Britain and the European Union reached a new divorce deal yesterday that could allow Brexit on October 31, but faced immediate opposition among MPs in London -- who can still block it.

The deal was sealed just hours before a summit of EU leaders that is expected to endorse the text, but it must pass the British parliament when it meets on Saturday.

British Prime Minister Boris

Johnson, who has staked his leadership on leaving the EU this month, said he had secured a "great new deal that takes back control".

European Commission President Jean-Claude Juncker said it was a "fair and balanced agreement" -- and both men urged MPs to support it to avoid any further delays.

If Johnson cannot get the deal through by Saturday, he will be forced by law to ask the EU to postpone Brexit, although Juncker said he agreed with Johnson that no postponement should be needed.

"We have a deal, and this deal means there is no need for any kind of prolongation," Juncker said.

It is for EU leaders, not Juncker, to decide whether or not to grant any eventual extension. Several heads of government arriving in Brussels urged British MPs to get behind the deal.

Johnson urged MPs "to come together to get Brexit done, to get this excellent deal over the line and to deliver Brexit without any more delay."
