DHAKA VIBE

If you have passed through Manik Mia Avenue recently, you may have noticed six shipping containers sitting right outside the parliament complex -- each depicting unique architectural landscape of Dhaka in different seasons. Designed by artist Reesham Shahab Tirtho, the vibrant graffiti on the container walls have caught the attention of all commuters, many of whom stopped to check out the exhibit.

The insides of the containers have been transformed into makeshift galleries, showcasing over a hundred genre-defining projects of Bangladesh -- from the iconic Curzon Hall and Jatiya Sangsad Bhaban to award-winning residential and commercial designs. This exhibition will conclude on Wednesday (November 6).

"I've actually learned a lot through this exhibition, and I enjoyed walking along this street and exploring each shipping container," said Sobnom Lopa, a second-year student of architecture at Bangladesh University.

Her classmate Saddam Hossain chimed in: "It would be great if more details and photos of the interiors were displayed, as the optimisation and use of indoor space is a crucial part of our lessons."

This public exhibition is part of ARCASIA Forum 20. Institute of Architects Bangladesh (IAB) is hosting this year's forum of Architects Regional Council Asia (ARCASIA), and this year also happens to be the latter's golden jubilee. On the occasion, multiple programmes are happening across Dhaka, including another public exhibition at Gulshan's Shaheed Tajuddin Smriti Park.

Titled "An Enclosure of Permeability and Aperture", the exhibit at Gulshan was designed by architects Saiga Iqbal Meghna and Suvro Sovon Chowdhury. It offers an entirely different experience from Manik Mia Avenue.

"The set-up made of large bamboo sticks create an open-to-sky gallery. The idea behind this translucent pavilion design is deeply rooted in the desire to engage people with ease and simplicity," the organisers explained. This exhibit will be open till November 15.

"Architects work for social good. Our designs and constructions are very people-centric, and it ultimately contributes to the making of a great city," said Ehsan Khan, vice president of international relations at IAB.

"These exhibitions are open to all, and located in very accessible locations so that the public can get an idea of what architects do and how they contribute to society," he said.

The organisers of the public exhibitions also ensured that their works remain sustainable. "Shipping containers were a great choice for a temporary exhibition. We did not have to construct anything new on the streets, and the containers are reusable," said Ehsan.

The exhibit has certainly managed to stir conversation among Dhaka dwellers, as people thronged the venue on Manik Mia Avenue for selfies and photos. Meanwhile, there is a play-area for children at the Gulshan park site, as the designers want to ensure that the exhibit does not take away the essence of the park, rather enhances people's leisure time.

Open exhibitions are a great addition to Dhaka, a city that is notorious for having little to no recreational facilities for its citizens. It is also the perfect weather for such events, and truly goes to show how art and architecture can enhance the lives of people.

Khalid was brought to ACC at about 3pm while ACC quizzed Shamim for the second consecutive day from 10am.

The High Court yesterday granted six-month bail to former textiles and jute minister Abdul Latif Siddique in a corruption case, filed on charge of misusing power in selling a government property.

House help confesses to killing both women

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The house help, who was arrested on Sunday night in the Dhanmondi double murder case, killed the elderly woman and another domestic worker in the house as the duo did not allow her to leave, police said.

Police disclosed the information after Surovi Akhter Nahida (19) confessed her involvement in the murders during primary interrogation yesterday, three days after the killings.

During primary interrogation, Surovi told police that she killed Afroza Begum (65) and Bithi (17) as they stopper her from leaving the flat after she told them she did not want to work there, Abdulla Hill Kafi, additional deputy commissioner of Dhaka Metropolitan Police (Dhanmondi zone), said.

Surovi also said she took a knife from the kitchen and slit Bithi's throat in the guestroom, later stabbing her in the chest too, the police official told The Daily Star.

Later, she also slit Afroza's throat in another room and stabbed her several times, leaving her dead on the spot.

Afroza and Bithi attempted to confine her in a room and did not allow her to leave the house until Atikul Haque Bachchu's arrival, the ADC quoted Surovi. Bachchu, bodyguard of Afroza's son-in-law Kazi Monir Uddin, apparently brought Surovi to the house.

After the murders, she took a mobile phone from the house and left, said Abdul Latif, officer-in-charge of Dhanmondi Police Station.

On the day of the incident, Bachchu brought Surovi to the house around 3:30pm and left around 5:30pm for work, police said.

Surovi said she first met Bachchu on October 26 and maintained regular communication with him since then.

Bachchu, who also lives in a room of the flat, allegedly sexually harassed her on the day of the murders, Surovi claimed during primary interrogation.
