DIFF 2019’s ultimate showdown

Bangladeshi artistes upholding the glory of traditional folk music

ASHLEY SHOPIRSHI SAMADDAR

The final day of the fifth Dhaka International Folk Fest (DIFF) 2019 featured two Bangladeshi artistes-- Malek Kawal and Chandana Majumdar.

The three-day event, presented by Meril, powered by Dhaka Bank and organised by Sun Communications, concluded recently.

The evening kicked off with Maizbhandari Sufi Qawwali songs by Malek Dewan, popularly known by his stage name, Malek Kawal. He was accompanied by his Qawwali troupe. Honouring the century-old legacy of Sufi music and mysticism, the Bangladeshi artistes took over the stage with Nagarsang Kirtnas. The booming beats of dhol and tabla blended with his voice as he sang his first track, Ism-e-azam.

With lights, music, and a gallery packed with enthusiastic listeners, Malek Kawal’s next song, Main Hoon Mast Kandari, hymned in harmony with a chorus. Their forty-five minute performance concluded with the song Maulana Maulana.

Their performance was followed by Finnish-Russian folk band Sattuma, who entertained the audience with neo-folk songs and instrumentals, incorporating the soothing sounds of violin, clarinet, folk flutes, and joughikko with modern instruments such as a bass guitar and drums.

Chandana Majumdar charmed the audience with her first song, Bhokti Chole Jaate Choron Pai, as she presided over the stage. Keeping up with the momentum, the folk queen then went on to present popular folk songs, Dhonno Dhonno and Shinni Khoaw Lov

Ache Jar.

Captivating the audience with her voice, she narrated the folklores of graam Bangla, rendering Bijoy Sarker’s composition, Tumi Jano Na Re Priyo. She bid farewell to the stage with the super-hit track, Jao Pakhi Bolo Taare.

The musical night came to a crescendo with Pakistani Sufi rockers Junoon on stage, as they mesmerised the audience with their compositions such as, Junoon, Mera Mahi, Yaar Bina, Yaara Yehi Dosti Hain, and their all-time favourite-- Sayonee.

‘No Dorai’ to hit the shores on November 29

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT DESK

Bangladesh’s first surfing film, No Dorai, which translates to “not afraid” in Chittagonian dialect, is scheduled to hit theatres on November 29. Star Cineplex (ShowMotion Limited) is set to venture into production with this film. The story of No Dorai is based on the life of Ayesha, a young Bangladeshi girl from Cox’s Bazar, who defies society’s norms to follow her dream of becoming a surfer. The film, directed by Taneem Rahman Angshu, is shot by cinematographer Suman Sarker.

Popular Bangladeshi singer Zefer Rahman is the executive producer of the project. No Dorai features Sariful Razz and Sunerah Binte Kamal in the lead roles.

‘BotTala Rangamela 2019’ begins

TIASHA IDRAK

The eleven-day international theatre festival, BotTala Rangamela 2019, began yesterday at the Liberation War Museum in Agargaon. With an objective of breaking the brutal silence of indifference and embrace the courage of magnanimity, the festival was inaugurated by renowned theatre personality Ataur Rahman.

Secretary of the Ministry of Cultural Affairs, Dr Md Abu Hena Mostafa Kamal, NDC, was present as the chief guest. Playwrights Sadhana Ahmed, Ruma Modak and Shubhashish Sinha attended the opening ceremony as special guests.

“Undoubtedly, theatre has its entertainment value. However, it also plays a role in educating people by forming a connection,” said Ataur Rahman. He applauded the festival organisers for appreciating the people behind the stage. 10 artistes worked behind the stage for this year’s iteration of the event.

“Unlike books, the life of theatre is ephemeral. Through plays, the actors bring the characters to life. There are often profound moments on the stage that strike an actor with an epiphany, that perhaps this is the reason they are alive”, added Ataur Rahman. Playwright Ruma Modak expressed that theatre is her voice of protest.

Professor Shafi Ahmed,

President of BotTala, opened up about the name of the organisation. “In the past, people used to gather beneath banyan trees (bot tala). Discussions, festivals and fairs were held around the trees. A banyan tree is, in fact, a symbol of union and harmony,” he said.

“In recent times, we have not really raised our voices against the atrocities around us. I believe that this silence and indifference is brutal. This festival is our attempt to break these patterns, which is why we have chosen the Liberation War Museum as our venue, despite the cynicism of many.” After the inauguration, there was a dance performance, titled Dhak-korotale bajuk jibon, by the Monipuri Theatre troupe.

The play, Crutch-er Colonel, was staged on the opening day. It is based on the biographical novel of the same title, about Bir Uttam Colonel Abu Taher, written by Shahaduzzaman. The novel is adapted for the stage by Soumya Sarker and Samina Luthfa Nitra. The play is directed by Muhammad Ali Haider. It stars Imran Khan, Kazi Rukhsana Ruma, Samina Lutf Nitra, Toufiq Hasan Bhuiya, Pankaj Majumder, Evan Riaz, Mohammad Saeed, Monjurul Islam Rony, Golam Mahbub Masum, Bakirul Islam and Nafiuul Islam.

Crutch-er Colonel is the ninth production of BotTala theatre troupe. The production featured minimalist props, yet portrayed the historical events of the story effectively. A few boxes, two ladders, proper lighting, great music, and a troupe of brilliant actors, brought Colonel Taher’s story to life. The festival will conclude on November 26.
