Remembering his early involvement in RTI, he said, "I was a university student in 2004 and helped tsunami victims. Then I realised you need a big organisation and the company of like-minded people to change the society. So when I came to know about the activities of RTI, I joined."
He also visited a charity project of RTI's Dhaka chapter where school supplies were distributed among underprivileged children.
According to its website, RTI has 54 associations operating across 58 countries. Some of the associations cover multiple countries. Each association has at least three tables or clubs, with maximum 25 members in each club.

"RTI doesn't have an association in Bangladesh, but there's a club called Dhaka Round Table with 16 members. We would like to expand our tables through community work and youth engagement," said International Relations Officer of Dhaka Round Table, Ejaz Mahmood Rony. Along with Rony, the committee in Dhaka includes Chairman Sifat Uddin Beg, Vice Chairman Mahmood Al Waheed and Secretary Asif Mahmud Sakib.
Dhaka Round Table started its work in 2013 but officially received approval from RTI in 2016, Rony said. Any Bangladeshi youth can be a member of it by paying a yearly membership fee of Tk 2,300.

age of public servants. Similarly, in exercising the jurisdiction under article 102 of the constitution the High Court Division cannot direct the legislature to enact or amend particular law," the SC said.
"The legislature is supreme in its own sphere under the constitution and it is solely for the legislature to consider as to when and in respect of what subject matter, the laws are to be enacted."

The High Court Division exceeded its jurisdiction, assuming the power of legislature, thereby, extending retiring age limit of freedom fighters -- serving in the service of the republic. "It cannot usurp the functions assigned to the legislature or executive to exercise their constitutional power in any manner," the SC said in the full text of the verdict.
