Bamboo barriers block flow of canal

Cultivation of winter crops on 20,000 hectares of land in Pabna's Santhia and Bera upazilas greatly hampered due to prolonged waterlogging

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Pabna

Fishermen have set up a number of barriers blocking the natural flow of an important canal crucial to agricultural activities on about 20,000 hectares of land in two upazilas of Pabna.

Flow of some 20 waterbodies have been blocked in Santhia and Bera upazilas because of 10 enclosures built with materials like bamboo, polythene and cotton net through which water cannot pass.

Fishermen backed by local political leaders, businessmen carried out the misdeed in the last couple of weeks, according to the local office of Water Development Board (WDB).

Water in some 21 kilometre of Kageshwari-3 canal are now stagnant, much to the inconvenience of farmers, who, otherwise, would have harvested paddy or cultivated onion at this time of the year.

"Paddy and onion are the key crops here. Due to prolonged waterlogging, farmers are not being able to harvest paddy or sow onion seeds," Santhia Upazila Agricultural Officer Sanjib Kumar Goswami told this paper.

"Cultivation of winter crops might also be greatly hampered if prompt steps are not taken to resume the water flow," he said, adding that authorities concerned including the upazila nirbahi officer (UNO) and the deputy commissioner (DC) had been informed about the situation.

"Water flows to 15 to 20 waterbodies in Santhia and Bera through Kageshwari-3. Fishermen backed by influential people halted the flow by setting up illegal bamboo enclosures," said Abdul Hamid, executive engineer of WDB (Bera Circle).

"Rainwater usually recedes at this time of the year but as the fishermen had illegally built the structures using shuti (cotton) net, the water could not pass. Through microphones, we have been urging them to remove the enclosures but to no avail," added the official.

Rayeez Uddin of Afra village in Santhia upazila has lost Aman paddy that he had cultivated on five bighas of land.

"I am unable to harvest now as my crops have been submerged," said the distressed farmer.

Vast tracts of croplands along Muktar Dhar, Shonaidaha, Ghighudaha Beel, Jamaidaha Beel, Boro Gram Beel, Kholsha Beel, Katiadi Beel in Santhia and Kalkuzra Beel, Shikor Beel, Etekata Beel, and Dhalpura Beel in Bera upazila have gone under water.

During a recent visit, this correspondent found six to seven bamboo enclosures set up at several points, including Shamikjani, Dattapara, Talpatti and Satanir Char, in the two upazilas.

FOUR-LANE CONVERSION OF ELENGA-JAMALPUR HIGHWAY

People's safety, sufferings being neglected

MIRZA SHAKIL, Tangail

While the widening work of the national highway between Elenga and Jamalpur continues at a snail's pace, no one seems to care about the health hazards as well as rampant accidents people are being subjected to.

The situation turned for the worse after Wahid Construction Limited and Jamil and Company -- the two contractors liable for the four-lane conversion work of the highway -- suspended their work for the last two months.

During the period they left large ditches, excavated on the sides of the highway for the widening work, unmarked and exposed to oncoming traffic as well as to pedestrians.

Aside from that, as they made one side of the highway off-limits to vehicles at different points, the other side developed numerous large-sized potholes due to an extra load of traffic on the portion of the road.

Vehicles moving over the potholes are kicking up huge clouds of dust, posing health risks for everyone on the road, while the potholes and the unmarked ditches are turning into death traps when those remain hidden under water after rain.

As accidents and vehicle breakdowns have been frequent, drivers are having to drive at a reduced speed on the road, causing traffic congestions almost all throughout the day.

Locals, especially students, who live on both sides of the highway are the worst sufferers as they have been enduring the dust pollution and all the other hazards every day.

Transport workers frequenting the highway said over a hundred people were injured, many of them seriously, since the work started on the road.

The contractors, under the supervision of Roads and Highways Department (RHD), started work on the Tk 489.82-crore four-lane project of 77.60 kilometres of the highway in February this year.

Approved by the Executive Committee of the National Economic Council on April 3, 2018, the project has an implementation deadline of June, 2020.

Saiful Islam, a driver of a bus transport service on Tangail-Jamalpur route, said the potholes on the road as well as the ditches on the sides pose serious safety hazards to moving vehicles and passengers in those.

The potholes are also causing expensive damage to the vehicles, he also said.

Atiqur Rahman, a rights activist from Ghatail area, said although people have been suffering immensely due to the poor condition of the road, no one from the two contractor firms were seen at the site for the last couple of weeks.

Asked, Assistant Engineer Mozammel Haque of RHD admitted that the contractors suspended the work for the last two months.

Claiming that he was not aware of the reason for the suspension, he, however, said the work resumed several days ago after the RHD pursued the matter with the two firms.

"A joint secretary from the ministry also came to see the work a few days ago and he warned the contractors saying that the deadline to complete the project would not be extended in any way," he added.

Project Manager Hafizur Rahman of Wahid Construction Limited said, "The work has resumed already and it will be completed by the deadline."
