Quick demise of slow Tigers

ABDULLAH AL MEHDI from Kolkata

Having won the toss, Bangladesh elected to bat first in the historic pink ball Test against India at the Eden Gardens yesterday. There was yet another batting collapse from the Bangladesh team as they were bundled out for 106 in 30-odd overs and the pink ball had nothing do with it.

With the afternoon start, there was only slight early movement from the pink ball but most of the time the ball only moved exaggeratedly after it passed the batsman. Cheteshwar Pujara recently talked about playing close to the body and getting behind the line of the delivery while batting against the pink ball. Tigers were often late in their shots with both Mohammad Mithun and Mushfiqur Rahim getting inside edges that crashed onto their stumps. National selector Habibul Bashar reached the conclusion that the batsmen were moving too slowly against the India fast bowlers.

"I think they were beaten by pace. I think our batsmen were often moving quite slowly against raw pace on this kind of wicket," Bashar surmised after the top four batmen fell within the first 12 overs.

Technique has been a problem for Bangladesh in the longest version of the game where batsmen have to persevere on tracks that offer some help to the bowlers. "You can see the way our four batsmen got out. It simply showed that they just could not react as per requirement. It is an area of concern.

"Surely it is technical and we need to work out this aspect of the game," he said.

Batting debacles have become pretty regular in Bangladesh's Test cricket and against the quality Indian pace attack, that trend continued yesterday after they had lost the first Test inside three days. The Tigers chose to bat first on a good wicket and they did not even make it to dusk, when the pink ball is supposed to move around more, as was evidenced when Bangladesh's bowlers got generous movement throughout the evening session. India had however persevered to 174 for three, a 68-run first-innings lead that is already looking formidable.

"I don't think pink ball is the major concern and what I personally feel is that batsmen should not have big problem seeing the ball. Batting first was not a problem because if you are unable to bat, then that would be the case with the second innings also," Bashar added.

The team lost the first Test by an innings and against the test set by the India fast bowlers, the batsmen were perhaps lacking in confidence, according to Bashar. The top-order were playing away from the body and there was tentativeness whenever the pacers bowled in the cordon of uncertainty on and around off stump.

"I think they are lacking in confidence and probably that is the reason they are making the same mistakes," he said.

Former wicketkeeper-batsman Khaled Masud, who along with Bashar was an invitee to the occasion of India's first pink-ball Test as members of Bangladesh's first Test team, said: "It's not good, I think they could have done better."

"The wicket is not otherworldly. When you play Tests, you need to cope with movement. You have to be ready whether it's a spinning track or a seaming one. You have to be ready for both."

Asked if it was a lack of mental strength, he insisted a lack of preparation was the cause. "It's a lack of preparation. I think the things you need preparation for in Tests is lacking."

Bangladesh were once again undone by the pace trio of Mohammad Shami, Umesh Yadav and Ishant Sharma with the latter running through the lower middle-order and tail-enders to bag five wickets.

"You need preparation to execute. The opposition has three quality pacers. You have fast bowlers in other teams who provide loose balls but they [India trio] are well formed and are express. When you face them you need the best preparation," Masud concluded.

Mehedi & Taijul in as Tigers' first concussion subs

SPORTS REPORTER

Bangladesh became the first team to use two concussion substitutes in the same Test on the first day of the second Test, which is also the first day-night Test in the subcontinent, against India in Kolkata yesterday.

Mehedi Hasan Miraz replaced Liton Das and Taijul Islam replaced Nayeem Hasan as the concussion substitutes for the remainder of the pink-ball Test against India. Liton and Nayeem were both struck on the helmet by India fast bowler Mohammad Shami's bouncers.

A lethal bouncer hit Liton on the right temple right at the stroke of lunch in the third ball of the 21st over. The wicketkeeper-batsman, however, resumed batting after being treated and questioned by the physio and even hit a couple of boundaries before asking for the physio to come back on the field again, which was when the supper break was called. During the interval, the team management informed that Liton was going for a scan and would not bat again in the innings, and it was decided that Mehedi would take his place. As per the relatively new concussion substitute rule, Mehedi will not be able to bowl off-spin and will replace Liton purely as a batsman.

In the first over after the break, another Shami lifter fetched Nayeem a nasty blow over his earpiece. Although Nayeem batted on for 19, Taijul took the field when Bangladesh came on to bowl, becoming the fifth concussion substitute since the International Cricket Council introduced the new rule in August this year.

He was also the fourth cricketer to be used as the concussion substitute against India and this was also the third time that a concussion substitute was being used in a Test in India.

West Indies' Jermaine Blackwood was the first against India, replacing Darren Bravo, during the second Test in Jamaica earlier this year. South African De Bruyne was the next when he replaced Dean Elgar in the Ranchi Test last month.

Test cricket first witnessed the concussion substitute under the new 'concussion rules' after Australian batsman Steve Smith was replaced by Marnus Labuschagne on Day Five of the second Ashes Test at Lord's this year.

The ICC approved the player replacements in all formats of men's and women's international cricket and for first-class cricket worldwide after testing it in Australia's domestic matches since the 2016-17 season. The England and Wales Cricket Board (ECB) had adopted the rules in 2018 for its four professional domestic tournaments.

EMERGING TEAMS ASIA CUP

Bangladesh, Pakistan face off in final today

SPORTS REPORTER

Bangladesh and Pakistan will each look to clinch their maiden ACC Emerging Teams Asia Cup title when the sides face off in the final at the Sher-e-Bangla National Stadium in Mirpur today.

Both Bangladesh and Pakistan remained unbeaten throughout the tournament and have been clinical in all departments of the game.

Bangladesh reached the semifinals as group champions after defeating Hong Kong, Nepal and India in their Group-B encounters. The hosts then went on to beat Afghanistan comfortably by seven wickets in a semifinal fixture.

For Bangladesh, this is their maiden final appearance in the tournament and so, Najmul Hossain Shanto and his troops will look to cash in on the opportunity on their home turf.

Skipper Najmul has been leading the side from the front and is also the top run-getter of the tournament so far with 234 runs, featuring three fifties, from four matches. Bangladesh opener Soumya Sarkar has also been in good touch as the left-hander is third on the run-getters list with 229 runs while pacer Sumon Khan leads the most wicket-takers chart with eleven scalps.

According to Najmul though, the home side will take on any undue pressure to win the final and will treat it just like any other game but he added that should they manage to clinch the title, it would be a huge boost for the senior team as well.

"It's a very big opportunity for us and if we can get a good result it will be a huge boost for our senior team as well. Pakistan is a good side but I think we are keener to think about our game than thinking about our opponent," Najmul told reporters yesterday.

Pakistan also had a smooth run to the final, winning all their group matches against Afghanistan, Oman and Sri Lanka before going on to beat arch-rivals India in a trilling three-run win in the semifinals.

This will be the third final appearance for Pakistan in the ACC Emerging Teams Asia Cup. They were unable to clinch the title back in the 2013 and 2017 editions therefore, Rohail Nazir's side will be desperate to lift the trophy this time around.

Pakistan opener Haider Ali is the highest run-getter for his side with 192 runs, including a hundred, while pacer Mohammad Hasnain is the second highest wicket-taker with ten scalps. The fast bowler has already impressed with his sheer pace throughout the tournament.

"Obviously, Bangladesh are a very tough team to beat on their home soil. We look forward to playing some good cricket in the final as we have done our homework," Pakistan skipper Rohail told reporters.

Kolkata sees pink

SPORTS REPORTER from Kolkata

The day began in much splendour as the crowd began to roll in at the Eden Gardens for both India and Bangladesh's first-ever pink ball Test. Newly-appointed BCCI president Sourav Ganguly made a myriad of arrangements to usher in the pink revolution at Kolkata.

Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina, who was invited by Ganguly and her Indian counterpart to watch the historic Test match, was received by the BCCI chief along with Bangladesh Cricket Board (BCB) chief Nazmul Hassan at the stadium before the game. The Bangladesh Prime Minister and West Bengal Chief Minister were then escorted to the ground before both teams lined up and the captains introduced their players to the Prime Minister and Chief Minister.

The toss took place and under the bright sun, Bangladesh skipper Mominkul Haque won the toss and elected to bat on what was a sporting track with something in it for the seamers.

(Clockwise from L) India captain Virat Kohli introduced Bangladesh Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina to his team before the second Test against the Tigers began in Kolkata yesterday. Bangladesh fans were in a fiercely competitive mood as they watched the first day-night Test in the subcontinent unfold.

30.3 overs by then.

India would then accumulate 176 runs for the loss of three wickets by the end of the third session. At the end of the day's play, a cultural show orchestrated to the musical performance of Runa Laila was performed.

There were felicitations from Prime Minister Hasina and the Chief Minister for players of both sides and also for the former players of Bangladesh and India that participated in Bangladesh's inaugural Test in 2000.

BCCI president Ganguly, BCB president Nazmul Hasan, former India skipper Sachin Tendulkar, chief minister Mamata and Prime Minister Hasina then delivered speeches in the felicitation programme.

While the atmosphere was a vibrant one for the spectators, the Bangladesh team were bundled out for just 106 runs with the Indian pace battery running rampant. It was a brilliant atmosphere for fans with the pink ball fest a lively one but there was not much to rejoice in for the Tigers on a day that belonged to India.
