Barbosa brace clinches Libertadores title

AFP, Lima

Flamengo came back from the dead to break the hearts of holders River Plate and win the Copa Libertadores in Lima on Saturday with a thrilling late brace from Gabriel Barbosa that decided the final 2-1 at the death.

Barbosa scored in the 89th minute and again in injury time to see his side bounce back from Rafael Santos Borré's 15th-minute opener for River after a game largely dominated by the Argentine side.

After turning the game on its head in a frantic finale, Barbosa then got sent off along with River's Ezequiel Palacios.

River had never looked like relinquishing their lead against the surprisingly sluggish Brazilians after Borré had put them ahead.

But then came Barbosa's late show. With barely a sniff all game from a robust River defence, the Flamengo striker popped up at the far post in the last minute to tap home after good work on the left by the tireless Bruno Henrique.

Two minutes into injury time he latched onto a long ball out of defence, moving into the box before firing crisply past River keeper Franco Armani and sending Flamengo's fans delirious.

Palacios, River's best player, was then sent off for kicking out at Henrique, quickly joined by Inter Milan loanee Barbosa, who had sarcastically applauded the referee.

The Brazilian side improved after the interval but only really got going late in the second half, having shown nothing of the attacking verve and fluid passing instilled by new Portuguese coach Jorge Jesus that had swept them to the final and to the cusp of the Brazilian championship.

Pressing high and aggressive in the tackle, River dominated the opening 45 minutes, time and again getting in behind Flamengo's 34-year-old full-backs Rafinha and Felipe Luis.

Borré put River in front when he rifled in a shot on the turn from the middle of the penalty area after Flamengo failed to clear a cross.

Before Barbosa's double, the closest Flamengo had come to an equalizer was in the 67th minute when Henrique cut back from the byline and Barbosa's shot was somehow blocked on the line by flying defenders, before being saved in the end by a grateful Armani.

Manchester United must have thought that they had stolen a win at Bramall Lane when a seven-minute blitz produced three goals and saw them overturn a 2-0 deficit against Sheffield United in their Premier League game yesterday, but in another dramatic twist, Oli McBurnie (R) scored an equaliser in stoppage time and the points were shared. ## Man Utd officials coming tomorrow

SPORTS REPORTER

A four-member logistics team from Manchester United Football Club will arrive in Dhaka tomorrow to inspect the facilities here and hold talks with the Bangladesh Football Federation (BFF) officials for a proposed tour of Bangladesh next year, confirmed a BFF official yesterday.

The BFF, as part of programmes marking the birth centenary of Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, has been trying to bring marquee football teams to Bangladesh. As part of that plan, the BFF supposedly proposed the English giants to play a match here in June-July next year through an agent.

"The four Manchester United officials are coming through an agent with our acknowledgement. They will inspect the venue and hold talks with BFF officials regarding the feasibility of any match here," BFF general secretary Abu Nayeem Shohag said, adding that the visit is a very early step in the procedure as the other dynamics of any proposed match - timing, opponents and status of the match -- are yet to be chalked out.

'Resigned for abuse'

SPORTS REPORTER

The father of a female basketball player made allegations against the coach of the national women's team of physical assault and mental abuse of his daughter.

"My daughter resigned from the women's national basketball team due to physical assault and mental abuse by coach Sabuj Miah during the tour of Kolkata from November 10 to 22," Kawsar Chowdhury, the father of the player, said over phone yesterday, adding that they had also brought the allegations to the Bangladesh Olympic Association (BOA).

The women's basketball team had gone to Kolkata to play five practice matches as part of their preparations for the upcoming South Asian Games. They are scheduled to leave here Nepal on December 3.

"My daughter was very keen on playing basketball from her school life. She even dropped a semester at university to be part of the national women's team. She said before that their coach scolds girls. But when I spoke to them, my calm and logical approach was responded to with shouting and illogical retorts," said Chowdhury.

"My daughter burst into tears after returning from Kolkata and said that she would not return to the national team as the coach not only assaulted her, but other girls too."

Sabuj Miah denied the claims, saying: "I did not slap her or anyone else. It is a false allegation. Actually, the problem arose when I started training at 6:30am. In the morning, the roads were free and the girls got the opportunity to run, but her mother opposed it and her daughter was even late to training a few days."

BBF executive member and men's team head coach Ranjit Das, who initially guided the women's team, said: "Sometimes a coach scolds players because of their reluctance in training and slaps them softly but that is not true physical assault. Besides, the guardians become emotional watching the hard training of their girls, whom we also love and cherish. I think her father made these allegations on emotional grounds."

Bangladesh Olympic Association (BOA) Director General Fakhruddin Haider said he had asked the father to meet him: "We have not received any mail in this regard but I talked to her father and asked him to come [to the BOA] tomorrow [Sunday]. I will hear the incident from him and take measures accordingly."

Last month, the Bangladesh national swimming team's Japanese coach, Takeo Inoki, resigned and left for his home country after witnessing how junior swimmers were punished in cruel fashion.

Watling, Santner hound England

AFP, Mount Maunganui

England were battling for survival after Mitchell Santner took three cheap wickets following a match-turning double century by BJ Watling in the first Test against New Zealand yesterday.

After New Zealand declared at 615 for nine on day four in Mount Maunganui, England were 55 for three at stumps, needing a further 207 on the final day if they are to make the Black Caps bat again.

Watling swung the match firmly New Zealand's way with his Test best 205 and a record-breaking partnership with Santner which scored a maiden century and then capped his remarkable day by taking three wickets for six runs.

England wicketkeeper Jos Buttler blamed scoreboard pressure for the tourists' predicament after they had held the upper hand when New Zealand were 197 for five before Watling's marathon effort kept them in the field for a tiring 201 overs.

England had an uncomfortable two hours batting with openers Dom Sibley (12) and Rory Burns (31) as well as nightwatchman Jack Leach (nought) all falling to Santner. Watling shared a 116-run partnership with Colin de Grandhomme and then put the home side firmly in charge as he rewrote the record books with Santner.

Watling's 205 comfortably beat his previous Test best of 142 not out against Sri Lanka in 2015, while Santner's 126 overhauled his 73 against Bangladesh in 2017.

When New Zealand declared soon after Jofra Archer claimed Watling's wicket, the 615 was their highest total against England, going past their 551-9 declared at Lord's in 1973.

Watling faced 473 deliveries and hit 24 fours and a six during more than 11 remarkable hours of batting which extended his unbroken time in the middle to 16 hours 16 minutes after he batted for 306 minutes to score an unbeaten 105 in his last Test innings against Sri Lanka three months ago.

Sam Curran, who claimed Santner's wicket, finished with three for 119
