Rohingyas use 3 lakh mobiles

BTRC asks operators to provide registration info of the SIMs

MUHAMMAD ZAHIDUL ISLAM

Rohingyas of Ukhia and Teknaf upazilas of Cox's Bazar are using around three lakh mobile connections of local carriers, a technical committee of the telecom regulatory commission has found out.

MSISDN is a number used for identifying a mobile phone number internationally that includes a country code and a national destination code which identifies the subscriber's operators and mobile devices as well.

The BTRC will verify the registration information provided by the mobile phone operators and if any irregularities are found, the operators will have to pay a fine of Tk 5,000 for each SIM unregistered or registered with incorrect information, said a senior official of the telecom regulator.

The regulator has also asked the operators to block all services, except voice calls, in the Rohingya camp areas of Ukhia and Teknaf until further notice, reads the letter BTRC sent to the operators.

In September, the telecom watchdog blocked the 3G and 4G services in the camp areas to stop the refugees from
